WHEELER A MATCH FOR REED IN BRISK GIVE-AND-TAKE IN PRIMARY INQUIRY

Senator Questions Anti-Saloon League Counsel About "Interference" in Heber Nations Case.

WITNESS SAYS LOCAL DRYS DREW HIM IN

Organization.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Seizing an opportunity for which he had long been itching, Senator Reed of Missouri, as chairman of the Senate's Campaign Fund Investigating Committee, this morning put Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel and legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, on the witness stand and started a rigorous examination designed to show the inner workings of the organization, which had been issued by Wheeler about the alleged use of wet money for Representative Vane, the winner of the recent millionaires' senatorial primary in Pennsylvania, gave Reed his cue.

He directed last night that the he be subpoenaed as a witness. This Reed made the opportunity which was denied him at the recent prohibition hearings, when Wheeler elected to appear as an attorney for the dry side instead of a witness.

"Who are you?" asked Reed.
Wheeler was on hand with a portfolio of papers, when the hearing began. In a full during the examination of a preceding witness, he went to the committee table and asked Reed when he might expect to be called.

"Who are you?" asked Reed.
"I'm Wheeler," was the rather shaded reply.

"I hadn't the pleasure of your acquaintance," said Reed.
Wheeler explained that he had an appointment for 11:30 o'clock that he would break if the examination seemed likely to run over that hour.

"You had better cancel it," said
Reed shortly.
A few minutes later Wheeler was called.

Wheeler walked to the witness chair in an atmosphere that crackled with expectancy. He and Reed looked each other squarely in the eyes as Reed administered the oath. The battle of the giants—for that is the way in which Washington looks at these men—was on.

Honors Even in First Clash.
As has been expected, the dry chief proved an antagonist worthy of his steel. Wheeler was even at the noon recess. Wheeler appeared quite composed. At times he leaned back in his chair, resting his chin on his left hand. Again he would lean forward and emphasize his replies by striking the table. His voice was steady and he looked right at his questioner.

They made a noticeable physical contrast—Reed with his fresh coloring and white hair; Wheeler, a smaller man, with sallow complexion, thin brown hair and a small sandy mustache. His sal-lowness has been heightened by recent illness.

Just before the end of the noon recess, after a long series of questions about Wheeler's salary, the form of the League organization, his legislative activity and other such matters, Reed asked how much the League collected for its work in 1925.

Wheeler said he did not know the exact amount, but thought it was between $150,000 and $200,- 000.

"How much did you collect in 1924?"
Wheeler said he did not know, but would be glad to ascertain the amount from the League's books at Westerville, O.

Reed Demands Figures.
"Can you find out by wire?"
"If the committee makes that request," smiled Wheeler.
"Speaking for the committee," said Reed, "I make the request."
Then Reed, perceptibly told the witness exactly what he wanted produced before the committee.

"Give us," he said slowly, "the amount of money that you have on hand, and the bank or banks in which it is deposited. Give us the amount collected for 1926. Give us the amount collected in 1925."

THREE STUDENTS GET 13 YEARS FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

Youths Who Attended Illinois Teachers' College Plead Guilty of Charges Made by Schoolmate.

TO BEGIN SENTENCES AT REFORMATORY

May Be Transferred to Joliet Penitentiary When 25 Years of Age—Young Woman Was Beaten on Ride.

By the Associated Press. ST. LOUIS, Ill., June 17.—Facing 13 years' imprisonment for criminally attacking a girl schoolmate, Leonard Rich, 20 years old; Stanley Hurt, 20, and Emerson Wilson, 21, former students at the Northern Illinois State Teachers' College at De Kalb, today await transfer to the Pontiac Reformatory.

In the presence of Dorothy Westervelt, whom they had pleaded guilty to attacking in an automobile last April, the trio heard Judge William J. Fulton pronounce the sentence yesterday. The judge characterized the task of fixing the sentence the most difficult he had encountered while on the bench.

The youths are to be confined at Pontiac until they are 25 years of age and then transferred to the State Prison at Joliet.

Throughout yesterday the Court heard the boys' plea for mitigation of their sentences, each testifying that the girl had acquiesced to their demands.

None of the three, however, accounted for Miss Westervelt's bruises, which doctors, who attended her, described on the stand. All denied beating her.

BIG CROWD GREET PAPAL LEGATE AND PARTY IN CHICAGO

Continued from Page One. The lady, have come to take part in our celebration, even those not of our faith have put aside all selfish or partisan consideration and have accorded to us and to our guests a friendly and cordiality such as has never been evidenced before in our history.

"And yet there would have been something lacking to our joy and festivity on this occasion were it without the active participation of the head and father of the great Catholic family, of him who is Christ's vicar here on earth."

"I need not emphasize the satisfaction your coming here as the legate of the Holy See gives to my own people. No history of the diocese of Chicago can ever be written in which the name of Cardinal Bonzano will not find a lasting remembrance."

Crowd Waits in the Rain. Rain which fell throughout the early morning hours did not dampen the ardor of throngs which gathered in the concourse of the Illinois Central Station hours before the scheduled arrival of the Red Special. Pealing of church bells throughout the city and the tooting of whistles proclaimed its arrival.

A prominent layman was assigned as personal escort to each of the Cardinals arriving on the train. Each Cardinal also was assigned a personal bodyguard, picked by Chief Collins from members of his department.

Cardinal Hayes of New York was the assigned guest in the procession of Edward Hines, wealthy lumberman and member of the Knights of St. Gregory, the Pontifical Guard of Honor.

Brief services of thanksgiving for the safe arrival of the party and the rendition of the "Te Deum" were arranged to precede the formal welcome at the Cathedral.

Above the cathedral portals was an immense, brilliantly colored shield, showing a representation of the Eucharist, an ostensorium with the lettering "I. H. S." (Jesus Savior of Men). At the end of the main aisle was the altar where, reaching up to the sanctuary ceiling, a gleaming half-environment of white velvet and sparkling silver was edged above and around at the sides with ermine and scarlet and gold.

Lights Concentrated on Altar. Surrounding the altar tabernacle, within the half-environment, was a giant golden sunburst with a place for the Eucharist in the center; beneath, toward the sides of the sanctuary, were Cardinals' thrones. Floods of light were concentrated on the white marble altar.

As the legate, accompanied by the Right Rev. Edward F. Hoban, president of the Congress, proceeded down the main aisle, the cathedral organ pealed.

Cardinal Bonzano and Bishop Hoban were rejoined by Cardinal Mundelein for the exchanges that custom calls for when a papal

HER MEMORY TRAPS BAD CHECK PASSER

By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer. MISS LORENE GREENSTREET.

MAN RECOGNIZED BY FRAUD VICTIM AFTER FIVE YEARS

Check Passer Arrested for Trying to Repeat Swindle on Woman Employee of Jewelry Firm.

Miss Lorene Greenstreet, 24-year-old bookkeeper of the Greenstreet-Monti Jewelry Co., has a remarkable memory for faces. Five years ago she sold a $250 diamond ring to a young man and he gave her a worthless check.

The company, then in the Victoria Building, recently moved to the Arcade Building. Not knowing he was calling on the same firm, the man visited the Arcade Building yesterday to repeat the swindle. Miss Greenstreet recognized him and telephoned for police. The man recognized her and departed hurriedly.

To Detectives Shelton and Williams, Miss Greenstreet gave a perfect description of the swindler—his thick lips, the freckles on his hands, his bushy auburn hair, his flashy clothes. At Union Station last night the detectives saw such a man and arrested him.

The prisoner was identified by Miss Greenstreet and confessed. He said he was Jacob Feilheimer, 25 years old. After leaving St. Louis five years ago he was detected in a swindle at Washington and served a term of two years and three months in Leavenworth. He returned to St. Louis a week ago and succeeded in exchanging worthless checks for a $86 diamond ring, an $80 sapphire and a $27.50 watch, all of which he turned for a fraction of their value.

Wayne Wheeler Holds His Own in Lively Questioning by Reed

Continued from Page One. He went on and named separately each year back to 1920. "You can get all that in one telegram, can't you?" he ordered. "And if you cannot get the exact amount, I want a very close approximation. I don't want to wait for anybody to balance his books."

The examination was just getting to the subject of the Pennsylvania primary, at the end of an hour and a half of questioning when a recess was taken.

Asks Wheeler About Career. Reed began on Wheeler with a series of curt inquiries about his career. He learned that Wheeler was born in Brookfield, O., 56 years ago, that he later lived in Cleveland for three or four years, and came to Washington for the Anti-Saloon League about nine years ago.

Wheeler told of the case of a young man in Maryland, who, he said, went with some officers to point out some stills, was waylaid by moonshiners and supposedly killed. The victim, he proceeded, came to life and was then arrested, haled into court at 2 a. m. on charges of assault and sent to jail for several months. It was in cases of that kind, he said, that the league felt justified in laying the facts, as he saw them, before the authorities.

"I don't want those hearsay cases," said Reed. Wheeler was telling more about the case, which he described as an "outrage," when Reed interrupted. "You must answer the same as any other witness," admonished Reed.

Cites Case of Heber Nations. "Then there was a case in St. Louis," began Wheeler. Reed immediately showed intense interest. The case was that of Heber Nations, who, Wheeler said, was one of the Nations boys, not the enforcement agent.

The League was told, Wheeler went on, that church people in St. Louis, the State Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U. were claiming that he could not get a fair trial in St. Louis and were working for a change of venue. Wheeler said that he called his people in St. Louis on the long distance phone and told them that if they were doing anything of that kind, it should be stopped.

"Wasn't that case to come before the primary?" asked Reed. "Yes, I think it was," Wheeler said. "Nations," said Reed, "was tried for accepting a bribe from a brewer, and the prohibition element had been protesting that he couldn't get a fair trial and demanding a change of venue."

Wheeler agreed with this statement of the fact. Reed Praises Judge Faris. "Yet Judge Faris," observed Reed, "is one of the best judges in the United States."

Wheeler went on to say that he asked the Anti-Saloon League people to keep out of this case, lest it look as if they were trying to influence the jury.

Reed wanted to know whether Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, did not denounce this case as a "typical Missouri prohibitionist case," "outrageous and in contempt of court."

"I believe she said they were over-zealous," replied Wheeler. "Feared St. Louis Environment." Wheeler said that the Missouri League did not initiate the cry for a change of venue in the Nations case but joined in after the local church people and the W. C. T. U. had begun to ask for a square deal for Nations. He said that they feared the "St. Louis" environment.

"And Nations," asked Reed, "was tried and convicted?" "Yes," Reed went back to the previous statement of the witness that it was the "rule" of the League that when it felt that a man was being framed" to urge justice for him. Reed said this meant that the League assumed to pass on the merits of a case in advance and to "interfere with the processes of justice."

Wheeler warmly denied this conclusion, and they argued the question for several minutes. Wheeler said that the League was as active in trying to get "crooked men" prosecuted as in protecting the rights of the innocent. "We are guided by the facts," he said.

Active on 50 Cases, Maybe. He could not tell in how many cases the League had operated under this rule. Reed pressed him for an exact figure. No, it was not 1000, he said, he thought it was 100, it might be 50.

"The substance of your statement is," said Reed after a long wrangle with the witness. "That when you think a man has been framed, you interfere for him?" Wheeler started to argue the point further, but Reed cut in.

"I wonder if you remember the words 'yes' and 'no'?" he said, sarcastically. "There are other witnesses to be heard here."

Wheeler said there were some questions that he would not be answered "yes" or "no."

"Bring a complete list of the cases in which you have sought to interfere," ordered Reed. "We don't call it interference," retorted Wheeler.

Work as Legislative Agent. Wheeler said that as legislative agent of the League he attended congressional hearings on prohibition matters and kept the State organizations posted on pending bills, both enforcement bills and those that aimed to "nullify" the eighteenth amendment. He said that he did not think they had anything to do with the Pennsylvania primary.

Reed said severely that he would get to the primary later. "You have said," proceeded Reed, "that you keep the voting records of Congressmen. Have you also taken part in elections?"

"Yes," in some districts," replied Wheeler. "We have taken part both in primary and in general elections."

"And you collect money," in general, we collect money to carry on our work."

"What is the Anti-Saloon League?" asked Reed. "Names Officers of League." The witness gave the names of the officers. Reed wrote them all down. Wheeler said the League was started in Ohio in 1893 by Dr. Howard Russell, who is still one of its officers. He was amplifying some remarks about the organization of the League when Reed checked him.

"Just wait a minute," said the Senator. "I'll ask the questions and you answer them. I'll get all the facts I'm interested in."

They were talking about the raising of money when Wheeler, with a sly smile, said that he had a copy of a letter in which the wets were appealing for funds to college alumni. The audience laughed.

Reed said he would be glad to see the letter.

ARICA MOB BOOTS LASSITER

Chilean Troops Guard Americans Handling Boundary Dispute.

By the Associated Press. ARICA, June 17.—Heavy guards of local coast artillerymen and sailors have been placed at the home of Gen. Lassiter, chief of the American delegation of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission, and of other American officials attached to the commission.

The guards were stationed as a precaution because a considerable crowd gathered in front of Gen. Lassiter's house this morning. Gen. Lassiter was hided when he appeared at the window of his house but the Chilean authorities interfered quickly. Leaders of the crowd shouted anti-American sentiments before they were driven away. The Americans expect to sail north Sunday.

have the letter for the committee. He then ordered the production of statistics showing the league's collections over a term of years.

Pittsburg Reporter on Stand. Before Wheeler was called to the stand, A. W. Brown, a reporter of the Pittsburg Press, testified. The chairman sought further light on the "bread and butter" speech of Mayor Kline of Pittsburg, in which he was said by the Press to have threatened city employees with loss of their positions unless they supported the Pepper-Fisher ticket in the primary. Kline himself, testifying last night, denied that he had made such a threat.

Brown described two meetings addressed by Kline which he attended. Most of those he knew there were city and county employees, he said.

Brown declared his report of Kline's speech as quoted in the Press was accurate.

In a second speech, Brown said, the mayor omitted that section of the first speech threatening to dismiss city employees who did not vote for the Pepper-Fisher ticket.

"Did Mayor Kline or any of his friends repudiate your account of the first meeting?" asked Senator King. "No."

Word that Wheeler was on the stand spread rapidly during the noon recess, with a result that the committee room was stormed by hundreds. Long lines of those who could not get in extended down the corridors.

Reed was a few minutes late, and when he came in he called a conference of the committee in an adjoining room.

When the Senators returned to the hearing room, Wheeler was asked to stop aside temporarily. And Roy E. Schooley of Pittsburg was called to the witness stand.

Schooley said he was secretary of the regular Republican organization in Allegheny County, and in the last primary campaign he was the secretary of the Pepper-Fisher committee in Pittsburg. The budget for weekly and foreign language newspapers in Allegheny County, he said, was $12,000, that was exceeded by about $1000.

"Do you know of any brewery or brewery interests that contributed to your committee?" asked Reed. "I do not," Schooley said.

"In fact, I don't know who contributed to our committee."

"Do you know of any organization which has for its purpose the repeal of the Volstead act or the eighteenth amendment that contributed to the Pepper-Fisher committee?" "I do not."

failure by the grand jury during its general inquiry into circuit court cases, against the advice of William O. Reeder, special counsel named by the bankers' committee to assist in the prosecution of Ferguson, elected to try him on a charge of embezzlement. Ferguson was freed by an instructed verdict of acquittal. Sidener then dismissed three indictments charging false statements to obtain credit, explaining that he did not believe he could make a case. This opinion is not shared by Reeder or the Attorney General, who submitted the case of Ferguson is undertaken it will proceed on the very grounds which Sidener called valiantly.

The grand jury held a routine session yesterday and will meet again at 2 p. m. tomorrow, at which time Generaly will submit the Ferguson and other matters.

Failure of Sidener's office successfully to prosecute Lem Motlow, wealthy Tennessee distiller, who killed a Pullman conductor, will also be probed by the grand jury. The petit jury which acquitted Motlow, members of which have criticized the State's handling of the case, has been summoned to testify before the grand jury.

Meanwhile, the requisition for William Allen Scott, Rutherford will be argued before Gov. Terral of Arkansas at Little Rock by Assistant Attorney-General James Potter. The papers were signed by Gov. Baker this morning and will be taken to St. Louis late today by Potter. Here he will be joined by City Detective Ben White, with whom he will leave St. Louis tonight for Little Rock.

The extradition hearing probably will be set for tomorrow at the Arkansas capital. If the extradition is granted Willie is charged with the task of assisting Rutherford.

Allen Rutherford is accused here in two indictments charging second degree murder and feloniously carrying a concealed weapon. The State later plans to extradite his brother, John, who has admitted spending $14,500 "to arrange matters" so Allen could escape a second-degree murder charge on a $500 fine. The move to extradite the Rutherford followed the refusal of John to come to St. Louis to testify concerning his part in the Rutherford murder case settlement, as he promised Attorney General Gentry.

Mix's Order Attacked. A motion to block the extradition of Allen Rutherford on the reinstated murder charge was filed by Harry Troll and Nathaniel Whaley, his new St. Louis counsel, with Judge Mix yesterday. The motion asks that Judge Mix vacate his order setting aside the original judgment in the Rutherford case. The judgment was set aside May 26 on motion of Attorney-General Gentry, who declared that Sidener's recommendation of a plea of guilty of manslaughter and $500 fine was "a fraud upon the court."

GRAND JURY WILL CONSIDER FRAUD IN FERGUSON CASE

Attorney-General Will Ask It to Vote on Charge of Deception in Obtaining Credit.

REQUISITION FOR W. A. S. RUTHERFORD

Arkansas Executive to Hear Probably Tomorrow Gov. Baker's Demand for Return of Bellboy's Slayer.

Attorney-General Gentry will arrive in St. Louis tonight, and tomorrow will present to the grand jury for vote an indictment charging Forrest Ferguson, president of the defunct Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., with fraud in having made false financial statements in order to obtain credit.

This indictment, if voted, will be framed under the general fraud statute providing that anyone convicted of obtaining money or property or any valuable thing "by use of any trick or deception, or false and fraudulent representation or statement or pretense" shall be sentenced to the penitentiary for a term not exceeding seven years.

The decision to indict Ferguson comes after investigation of the $2,000,000 Ferguson-McKinney failure by the grand jury during its general inquiry into Circuit Attorney Siderer's office. Siderer, against the advice of William O. Reeder, special counsel named by the board of directors, committed the prosecution of Ferguson, elected to try him on a charge of embezzlement. Ferguson was freed on an instructed verdict of acquittal. Siderer then dismissed three indictments charging false statements to obtain credit, claiming that he did not believe he could make a case. This opinion is not shared by Reeder or the Attorney-General and if prosecution of Ferguson is undertaken it will proceed on the very grounds which Siderer called valueless.

The grand jury held a routine session yesterday and will meet again at 2 p. m. tomorrow, at which time Gentry will submit the Ferguson and other matters.

Failure of Siderer's office successfully to prosecute Lem Motlow, wealthy Tennessee distiller who killed a Pullman conductor, will also be probed by the grand jury. The petit jury which acquitted Motlow, members of which have criticized the State's handling of the case, has been summoned to testify before the grand jury.

Requisition for W. A. S. Rutherford. Meanwhile, the requisition for William Allen Scott Rutherford will be argued before Gov. Terrell of Arkansas at Little Rock by Assistant Attorney-General James Potter. The papers were signed by Gov. Baker this morning and will be taken to St. Louis today by Potter. Here he will be joined by City Detective Ben Wille, with whom he will leave St. Louis tonight for Little Rock.

The extradition hearing probably will be set for tomorrow at the Arkansas capital. If the extradition is granted Wille is charged with the task of arresting Rutherford.

Allen Rutherford is accused here in two indictments charging second-degree murder and feloniously carrying a concealed weapon. The State later plans to extradite his brother, John, who has admitted spending $14,500 "to arrange matters" so Allen could escape a second-degree murder charge on a $500 fine. The move to extradite the Rutherfords followed the refusal of John to come to St. Louis to testify concerning his part in the Rutherford murder case settlement, as he promised Attorney-General Gentry.

Mr. Siderer's Order Attacked. A motion to block the extradition of Allen Rutherford on the reinstated murder charge was filed by Harry Trol and Nathaniel Whaley, his new St. Louis counsel, with Judge Mix yesterday. The motion asks that Judge Mix vacate his order setting aside the original judgment in the Rutherford case. The judgment was set aside May 25 on motion of Attorney-General Gentry, who declared that Siderer's recommendation of a plea of guilty of manslaughter and $500 fine was "a fraud upon the Court."

SENTENCED TO WORKHOUSE FOR PASSING A STREET CAR. Persistent Offender Fined Also for Endangering Alighting Passengers.

Robert Bruggeman, 21 years old, of 7125 Glenwood, was sentenced to five days in the Workhouse by Police Judge Beck today for driving in his automobile past a street car which was discharging passengers at Arlington and Easton avenues yesterday. Bruggeman was told the court that Bruggeman had been charged with six infractions of the traffic laws. The severe sentence was imposed on this account. Bruggeman will appeal.

LIST OF DEAD IN WRECK OF PENNSYLVANIA TRAINS JUST EAST OF PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 17.—The Pennsylvania railroad here today made public an official list of the dead in the wreck of the Cincinnati limited and the Washington Express, 50 miles east of here last night.

The list follows:

W. S. Gordon, Deery, Pa., engineer of the first locomotive hauling the Cincinnati Limited.

N. L. Hollingsworth, Greensburg, Pa., Gordon's fireman.

E. A. McConnell, Altoona, Pa., engineer of the second Limited locomotive.

A. McLees, New York City, baggage master of the Limited.

Edwin G. Donaghy, Pittsburgh, a passenger.

T. F. Farrell, Orange, N. J., a passenger.

C. S. Bowman, Columbus, O., general agent of the Erie Railroad.

Dr. C. B. Carter, Pittsburgh, Mellon Institute Research Expert.

A. R. Dinsmore, Moundsville, W. Va., a passenger.

Peter Spanos, Massillon, O., Mrs. William Brooke Dunwoody, of Wilkinsburg, Pa.

Two small daughters of Mrs. Dunwoody.

Thomas L. Porter, Washington, Pa.

rerouted over the Conemaugh division.

The injured were taken out, they were placed in ambulances and on trains and removed to the Latrobe Hospital, where it was found that three passengers, including Mrs. Essie Bryan of Owensboro, Ky., were in a critical condition. Surgeons amputated one of Mrs. Bryan's legs. Those who escaped with slight injuries were sent to Pittsburgh, given medical attention and placed on other trains to continue their journeys.

Efforts to question these survivors were all but fruitless. They were suffering from shock and were extremely nervous.

Survivor Describes Scene. The first account of the wreck from a survivor came from C. L. Ferrall of Grafton, Pa., who was in one of the Express sleepers.

"I was asleep when the crash came," he said. "It was a minute before I realized what happened. My ankles were injured and I couldn't walk. All was confusion. Men and women groped about in the darkness."

"The car was filled with debris and pieces of luggage. Those who were not badly hurt struggled out, assisting those more seriously injured. Two men picked me up and carried me out into the night. The rear of the car was shoved high in the air and the rescuers carried me up the sharp incline and finally placed me on the ground. I remained on my back until the relief train arrived."

"Too much credit cannot be given the train crews and the passengers on both trains who were not seriously hurt, for their heroic work in helping their less fortunate fellow passengers. Men and women went to work with a will in rendering aid, and during the seemingly long wait for the relief trains and doctors, they doubtless saved many lives by their timely aid."

Tells of Panic in the Dark. L. R. Bryant of Hampton, a passenger on the express, at Blairsville told a vivid story of the crash.

"All lights were out and when the surviving passengers came to realize what had happened bedlam broke loose," he said. "It was a panic."

"I was asleep in a lower berth when the impact came. My head crashed against the side of the berth and the next moment I tumbled out into the aisle. For a few seconds I couldn't realize what had happened, but when I heard the screams of the terrified and the moans of the injured I came to my senses. Several women were lying in the aisle while others staggered about in the darkness. I attempted to open a door but it was jammed. I met R. H. Eichel of Richmond, Va., and we smashed several windows, and began pulling women and children out of the wreckage."

Bryant and Eichel continued their rescue work until finally they collapsed from exhaustion.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hoelscher of Buffalo, N. Y., newlyweds on their honeymoon, survived the wreck, but lost all their clothing. They reached a Latrobe hotel with two Pullman blankets and their night clothes their only covering.

List of Injured at Latrobe. Among the identified injured at Latrobe are:

R. H. Jones, Cincinnati, O., lacations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Haecher, Buffalo, N. Y., lacations.

Charles Robinson, Negro porter, Pittsburgh, broken leg.

Peter Johnson, Cleveland, broken leg.

Clarence Heiple, Erie, Pa., bruises.

Carl Russell, Rutherford, N. J., bruises.

Mrs. Esie Bryan, Owensboro, Ky., amputation one leg; condition very critical.

Joseph Wise, Philadelphia, bruises.

Weak Speed, Washington, bruises.

GLASS 'DIAMOND' TRIO IDENTIFIED IN 3 FRAUDS HERE

Mrs. Sarah Schwartz Accuses Prisoners, Returned From Pittsburgh, of Getting Her $2500.

Mrs. Sarah Schwartz of 4662 Easton avenue visited Police Headquarters today to look at three men suspected of being the trio who swindled her and her husband, William, of $2500 in savings last May 27. The men were brought back to St. Louis from Pittsburgh, where they were arrested when found in possession of glass "diamonds" and a St. Louis newspaper clipping telling of the swindle.

One by one the suspects were paraded and questioned before Mrs. Schwartz. They insisted they had never seen her before. They said they were Joseph Raymond, Louis Harris and Julius David. However, she identified them as "Friedman," "Shapiro" and "Grossman," the men who swindled her of the money accumulated during 16 years of drudgery.

Davis, the elder of the trio was emphatic in his denials, and Mrs. Schwartz could restrain herself no longer.

"You ate my food and took my money," she cried. "You told me you could not eat at restaurants on account of your religion and I fixed you breakfast. I cooked you kosher meat—I fixed you eggs—"

"I never saw you before," insisted the prisoner.

Tells Police About Swindle. Mrs. Schwartz told police Davis was the man who entered the Schwartz shoe repair shop at the Easton avenue address and announced he was going to start a shirt factory next door. Harris, she said, was the man who entered at this point, inquiring for a mythical family that was going to buy from him 12 unset diamonds, which he exhibited. Mrs. Schwartz said Raymond was the "jeweler" who was summoned and said the "diamonds" were worth $12,000.

The second man sold the diamonds to the third man, who borrowed $2500 from Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz as part payment, leaving the store as security for the loan. The three men departed with the money and did not return. It was later learned the "diamonds" were cut glass.

Another Victim Appears. Mrs. Ida Kornblum of 1408 Blackstone avenue, visited headquarters today and identified Raymond as one of three men who swindled her and her husband, Isadore, of $4000 in a similar "diamond" deal on March 2, 1925. She said Raymond and two other men talked diamonds in the Kornblum hardware store at 4513W Easton avenues and completed the deal at the residence on Blackstone avenue.

They needed money to swing the deal and Kornblum drew $4000 from his bank and turned it over to one of the men. They left the "diamonds" with him as security. They did not return to repay the loan and he discovered he had spent his savings for cut glass.

Another person who called to look at the prisoners was Louis Peters, a hatter, of 1401 Cass avenue, who was swindled of $5000 in a money-switching scheme Sept. 14, last. He had identified a photograph of one of the men, but he failed to recognize any of the three today.

Peters was cheated by a man who offered to sell him a quantity of hats for $5000. Peters agreed and placed the money in an envelope on his desk, after the man counted the bills. Then they went for the hats and the man disappeared. Peters returned, opened the envelope and found scraps of paper had been substituted for the currency.

Admits Prison Sentence. Raymond admits serving a term for burglary in the Missouri State Penitentiary 10 years ago.

The three men were returned from Pittsburgh by Detectives Gerlach and Moran when they waived extradition. Their lawyers, however, sought to prevent the departure by obtaining a writ of prohibition against the detectives. The detectives departed on an earlier train, and eluded the lawyers.

ber of slightly injured to Pittsburgh. These included:

H. Roy Eckel, Richmond, Va. L. R. Bryant, Hampton, Pa. P. R. Geragocian, Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Alexander, Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. H. A. Kawhurst, Cleveland.

Miss Bernice Sutter, Mrs. Wawhurst's sister, Sidney Hess, New York.

Melodramatic Career of 'Little Georgie' Williams Ended in an Anti-Climax

Former City Detective and Slayer of Three Men, Product of St. Louis 'Bad Lands' Days, Dies in Bed

A melodramatic career, dating from the St. Louis "bad lands" days of a quarter-century ago, ended in quiet anticlimax when "Little Georgie" Williams, former city detective and slayer of three men, died in bed and from a natural cause, night before last.

"Georgie," diminutive and alert, with cold black eyes, master of the vocabulary of crookdom, came to manhood in the wide-open period of the Chestnut-Market street "Bottoms," west of Union Station, before the St. Louis World's Fair.

Ed Butler, wealthy Democratic boss, was overlord of that region, and two of its least restrained resorts were those run by "Bad Lands" Williams—not a relative of "Georgie," so far as is known—and Mike Churchill.

It was Mike Churchill who gave "Billy" Williams, father of "Georgie," a job, after "Billy" had left the position of secretary to Chief of Detectives Desmond. The two quarreled, and "Billy" killed Mike. Freed on a self-defense plea, the elder Williams was shot to death later, as he sat in a chair.

Under Height But Had Spunk. All that was after "Billy" had used his influence, still noted at the Four Courts, the police headquarters of that day, in getting "Little Georgie" on the force. "Georgie" measured only 5 feet 5 inches, and police regulations of the time called for a height of 5 feet 8 inches. But the youth was able to point to a brief career as a fly-weight boxer, including a little exhibition work in a vaudeville act headed by John L. Sullivan. His father persuaded the police authorities that Georgie made up in spunk what he lacked in inches, and the son, then just 21 years old, was appointed to the force in 1897.

So short a man would not do in a police uniform, so he was in the detective bureau as nosed on the start. Chief Desmond liked him, but the people among whom he had to move, in the underworld, refused at first to take "Georgie" seriously. He was greeted as the "fly cop messenger boy."

Incident of Wounded Horse. Williams' chance to stop this talk came when he found a horse, with a gash in his side, dying on the Chestnut street pavement. Someone had wanted to cut the animal, which had strayed from its stable. Williams learned that a gang of revelers, one of whom had been guilty of slaying a man, had gone to Churchill's Imperial Dance Hall, Twenty-third and Chestnut.

The dance hall was filled with men and women. With drawn revolvers, the young detective lined up the whole array along the wall, and searched them.

He found a man with a blood-stained knife, he took him and his nearest companions to the Four Courts. Later the man was convicted of the act of cruelty.

His First Killing. One night in 1900, Chief Desmond sent Williams to watch for a suspected incendiary in the neighborhood of Washington and Vandeventer avenues. A tramp, trying to "panhandle" supper money from a passerby, aroused Williams' suspicion, and he stepped up to place the man under arrest. The tramp fled and Williams shot and killed him. The man's name proved to be McBride. Williams was exonerated in this, his first killing.

Two years later, outside the Twelfth street saloon of Jim Cronan, then speaker of the House of Delegates, Williams killed "Bad Bill" Condon, a police character. There was dispute as to the circumstances, but Condon's reputation was so bad that Williams got the benefit of the doubt.

The best arrest in which Williams figured was made without bloodshed. In 1901 Chief Desmond got information that Ben Kilpatrick, head of the "hole-in-the-wall" gang of train robbers in the Pacific Northwest and sought throughout the country, was in St. Louis and could be found at a house in the "Bad Lands." Desmond picked five of his best men, meaning to take no chances. Williams was one of the group which went to the Chestnut street house, near Twentieth, entered and surrounded Kilpatrick before he could arise from a rocking chair.

Dismissed Over Brawl. In 1905, the new Police Board, appointed by Gov. Folk, gave the Police Department a memorable shaking up. Williams' walking partner, Lee Killian, was one of the city detectives who was displaced. Williams weathered the storm, apparently, but he was discharged early in 1906, after he had a dance hall fight with "Don" Killian, brother of Lee. A woman was the cause. The charge on which he was dismissed was one of intoxication.

Williams figured in some turbulent episodes after his dismissal, and all feeling between him and the Killian brothers, "Don" Lee and Pierce, developed rapidly. On the night of Feb. 27, 1907, Williams shot Lee Killian in the breast, in McGrath & McMahon's saloon at 724 Olive street, and in the presence of "Don" and Pierce Killian. Lee died a few days later.

Tom McGrath, himself a former detective, one of the proprietors of the saloon, who is a familiar figure downtown, told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night of the shooting of Lee Killian.

Tells of Killian Shooting. "That was a tough night," McGrath said. "I was on watch in the saloon. Georgie was sitting in a chair, up against the wall, facing the bar. The three Killians came in and saw Georgie there. Pierce told Lee to have out with Williams, and when Lee hesitated Pierce started after Georgie himself. He started to drag Georgie from his chair, and Georgie drew his gun. Pierce ran out, yelling for the police. Lee started toward Williams, tugging at his revolver, and Georgie fired once."

This story was substantially the one which Williams told in his defense to a murder charge, and which the two surviving Killians denied, charging that Lee was shot while helplessly drunk. Lee Killian's pearl-handled revolver, with three loaded shells, found in his pocket, helped Williams' case. Williams produced a penciled note, which he said he had written while sitting at a table a few minutes before the shooting, and which said that McGrath had just warned him of threats made against his life by the three Killians.

The jury which heard the evidence in July, 1907, was out 23½ hours, and returned a verdict of acquittal.

Lee Killian's two brothers later met violent deaths. "Don," whose given name was John, was killed in 1912 by one John L. Stewart, who served a short term for manslaughter. Pierce Killian was accidentally shot by a policeman, his close friend, less than two months ago.

"And yet, in a way, the Killians got even with Georgie for killing Lee," said McGrath, reflectively, after mentioning the fact that Williams outlived his enemies.

"I will always believe that the recent killing of Pierce Killian was the real, though indirect, cause of Georgie's death. In news accounts of the death of Pierce Killian the old story was retold, and it was stated that Lee charged, before his death, that Georgie shot him in the back. That charge was not true, as the records of the case show, but it got under Georgie's skin. He didn't want anyone to think that he had shot a man in the back. And he started drinking, though he had not been drinking for a long time before, as a doctor had warned him against it. He went on a long spree, and I am sure that it hastened his death."

"I met Georgie about a month ago, when he had been drinking. He kept talking about the shooting of Lee Killian. 'He had an even break,' Georgie kept saying. 'Get I'm afraid they'll get me yet,' he said. I asked him whom he meant, and he said, 'The Killians.' It was no use to tell him that the Killians were all dead."

Williams arrested Eddie Kelley, a bartender, for the murder of "St. Louis Tommy" Sullivan, pugilist, and Kelley was sent to the penitentiary for 25 years. Rumors that Williams was in some way involved in the killing were denied by him to his superiors. Williams declaring that he was not present at the time of the shooting. This old charge came up again when Lee Killian, before his death, said to a policeman, "Don't let Williams get away with this like he did with Sullivan." Williams said there was no basis of fact for this remark.

Employed at Hotel. When the American Hotel was opened in 1908, its owner, the late Louis A. Cella, employed Williams as house detective, and he worked for the American up to the time of his last illness. Guests enjoyed his crisp comments on current affairs, and particularly his use of underworld phrases, learned in part from "stool pigeons" whom he had employed. Some instances of the use of this jargon by Williams have been reported. "Get it," he complimented a young woman on her teeth, by remarking, "You've got a fine set of china in your dining room." A physician, to him, was a "croaker," a dentist was a "toothstone croaker," and a veterinarian was a "hitch croaker." "Get it," he said to a man who was making a crook out of town, by coercive police process, was "tip-toeing" him. Describing a pawnshop robbery, Williams once informed his hearers that "A rod stiff copped some hot stuff from a three-balled joint, and lammed down the grand-told."

A year and a half ago, Williams married Miss Teresa Repetto, auditor of the American Hotel. She remained in her position, but took a vacation recently when Williams became ill, and took him to Glenwood Sanatorium, in Webster Groves, then for a time to St. Clair, Franklin County, and finally back to the sanatorium, where he died Tuesday night. Death was attributed to myo-carditis, a form of heart disease. Williams was 50 years old.

Besides his widow, he is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Charles Gibbons and Mrs. Charles Barrows, both of 5569 Enright avenue, Mrs. Fannie Pratt of Milwaukee and Mrs. Jeanette France of Chicago, and a brother, Frank Williams of 518 Whittier street.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon from 1039 North Grand boulevard to Bellefontaine Cemetery.

NO ROOM LEFT FOR COUNTY RECORDS

Overflow From Vaults Inevitable, Recorder Tells Clayton Court.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 17.—A plea for better and more liberal support of the National Guard of Missouri was contained in a statement issued here by Adjutant-General F. M. Rumbold. It shows that the Federal Government is spending approximately $800,000 in cash each year for the support of the Missouri Guard, while the State has appropriated only $125,000 a year for its maintenance.

The head of the State Military Department added that the State appropriation for this year is even $25,000 less than the former appropriation, which made $150,000 a year available.

"The amount appropriated by the State is inadequate to properly maintain this guard," the Adjutant-General said. "Organizations in St. Louis, Kansas City and other communities are required to call upon public spirited citizens, the city or town administration, or County Court, for more than $200,000 a year, and even with this sum, adequate and proper armory facilities are not provided."

Part of United States Army.

Gen. Rumbold explained that the National Guard has changed much, inasmuch as it is no longer merely a State force, but, under the National Defense Act, is a part of the United States forces, in case of major emergency.

In connection with the apparent dual control of the National Guard whereby Missouri receives the approximate $800,000 a year, the State agrees to properly house and care for the equipment, which is given under the contract.

"Under the implied contract referred to, the Federal Government can take away Federal recognition from any organization if it is not properly housed and maintained, and hence the Federal support will be withdrawn," the General said.

Armories Inadequate.

"Inspection reports show that the average armory in the State is inadequate and insecure. It is earnestly hoped that the people in all sections of the State will see to it that those who represent them in the next General Assembly, whether as members of the House or Senate, properly understand the situation and if elected will agree to support a proper and adequate appropriation for the maintenance of the National Guard."

"It would seem little enough for the taxpayers of the State to give at least one dollar to the Government $4.00 or $20.00 a year for the support of the National Guard, when the Federal Government spends $800,000 annually in Missouri."

POLICE AUTO AND TAXI CRASH, FIVE INJURED

Cab Driver Arrested; Witnesses Say He Was Driving 40 Miles an Hour.

A collision of a police department automobile and a Checker taxicab at Third and Biddle streets at 11:45 o'clock last night, resulted in injury to five persons.

Those injured are: Detective Harry Cline, 33 years old, of 1829 Geyer avenue, fractured skull; Mrs. Eleanor Link, 17, 1410 Dodier street, possible fracture of the spine; her husband, Robert Link, 26, and two other passengers in the taxicab, Edward Bartlemeyer, 22, of the Dodier street address, and Anna Keltman, 17, 3214 North Ninth street, cuts and bruises on the body.

Taxicab Driver Arrested.

The taxicab driver, James Brennan, 19, of 1023 Gimblin avenue, was arrested. Detectives in the police machine allege he was driving about 40 miles an hour. He had been arrested two hours prior to the collision for parking in front of another car in front of Hotel Statler.

Joseph Graff, 30, of 4617 St. Ferdinand avenue, suffered a lacerated scalp and body bruises, at 1:45 a. m. today, when a milk wagon he was driving was struck by an automobile at Euclid avenue and Parkway place. The driver of the machine escaped on foot.

Thomas Morrissey, 26, a nurse at St. John's Hospital, was arrested later and identified by Graff as the driver. Morrissey made no statement.

Heard, but Excluded From Hospital.

Because she is a resident of St. Louis County admittance to Lutheran Hospital and City Hospital was refused Mrs. Bessie Williamson, 23, of 9940 Fern avenue, who was injured when a taxicab, in which she was riding struck a United Railways trolley pole in front of 4816 South Broadway last night when the driver swerved to avoid running into a sewer excavation. She was taken to Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, suffering from injuries to the spine and a lacerated scalp. The danger signal on the excavation was extinguished by the taxicab and a few minutes later Eugene Elrod, 20, of 6316 Alabama avenue, drove his motorcycle into it, suffering lacerations of the face.

HEARST SUES FOR $125,000 FOR NEWS STORY ABOUT SON

Record Publishing Co. of Los Angeles Defendant in Publisher's Libel Action.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, June 17.—William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, acting for his son, William R. Hearst Jr., filed a libel suit in Superior Court here yesterday demanding $125,000 damages from the Record Publishing Co., Henry R. Briggs, managing editor of the Los Angeles Record, and Rodney L. Brink, city editor.

The suit was the outgrowth of a story June 10 about Herbert Joyce being found injured in a wrecked car which he said had been rented by Hearst.

Find Brother Dead of Gas.

Edward Murphy, 45 years old, was found dead on the kitchen floor of his home, 1111 Coleman street, at 8 p. m. yesterday by his brother, Mathew. The doors and windows of the place had been locked, a chair put against the inside of the kitchen door and the burners of a gas stove turned on but not lighted. The brother said he knew of no reason for the action.

"Brings Roses"

MISS FLORENCE APPELSTEIN

"City Life in these strenuous days isn't apt to give us natural roses," says pretty Miss Florence Appelstein, 5453 Irving St., Philadelphia, Pa. "so I use the delightful Black and White Rouge, which, I think, greatly improves on nature, because you can put it where needed. This soft, delicate rouge never looks glaring or artificial, but gives a rosy glow seeming to belong to my coloring."

Pastidious women and girls everywhere are finding the same enthusiastic satisfaction in the "true-to-life" color touch of Black and White Light and Eyebrow Pencils, as well as Rouge. All three come in the 25c gold-tipped variety, just the right size for the purse.

If your dealer doesn't have Black and White Beauty Creations, send his name to Plough, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive FREE a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

PITTSBURG HAD BEER PRECEDING PRIMARY

Former Dry Agent Testifies Saloons With Pepper-Fisher Signs Were Wide Open.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 17.—K. M. Updegraff, a former prohibition agent of Pittsburgh today told the House alcoholic liquor traffic committee, that preceding the Pennsylvania primaries recently, "you could get a drink in any saloon" in Pittsburgh with a "Pepper-Fisher" campaign sign on the outside.

The witness was put under examination after James J. Britt, counsel of the prohibition unit, had entered a denial of charges that dry officials had been lax in acting on information that banks were active in financing whisky transactions, as made before the committee yesterday by William C. Davidson, a former Los Angeles bootlegger.

Secretary Mellon's qualifications as administrator of the dry laws came into the discussion, and finally Representative Laguardia, Progressive-Socialist, New York, asked Updegraff:

"Did you go in any saloon with a Pepper-Fisher campaign sign and get a drink?" "I did."

"Where did it come from?" "I don't know."

"Did you ever hear of the Hazelwood Brewery?" "Yes."

Saloons Wide Open.
After several questions the witness said he had never had a drink there.

"What were the conditions in Pittsburgh between May 1 and May 18?" continued Laguardia. "Wide open."

"What do you mean?" "Places where you could get a drink. Where there was a Pepper-Fisher campaign sign you could get good beer."

"I thought Pepper-Fisher were running on a dry ticket?"

The witness said he didn't know anything about that.

Britt entered a spirited defense of Secretary Mellon's administration.

Leading up to his question by asking Britt whether an ex-bootlegger, or ex-brewer, would make a good prohibition agent, Representative Laguardia finally asked about "an ex-distiller."

Defends Mellon.
"If you mean Secretary Mellon," Britt replied, "I say I know he is a good Secretary of the Treasury. I do not know as to his being an ex-distiller. In four years he has never laid a straw against enforcement of the dry law."

Chairman Hudson asked about instances where druggists' whisky permits were revoked but issued in other names, but the witness denied this was a practice.

"Isn't it an open scandal," Hudson said, referring to compromises by the bureau in retail forfeiture cases.

"I deny there is anything like a scandal," Britt replied.

Laguardia asked about "the Howell and King brewery," especially as to whether the case was compromised with the idea that the company would "support some one."

Britt denied this also, saying a compromise had been sought by the company to settle civil liabilities, but was rejected.

Smelled Liquor at Club.
During his testimony Updegraff charged that while he was employed as a Federal dry agent last November "a Mr. Cavanaugh," his superior in the Pittsburgh district, asked him to make false affidavits.

He said at the time an agent obtaining evidence in more than five cases in one day laid himself open to the charge of becoming intoxicated on the evidence. Cavanaugh wanted dates in affidavits, he said, to obviate this threat, and while Prohibition Chief Baird for the district said it was irregular, the dates were changed.

In reply to a question he said whisky was sold in the Duquesne Club in Pittsburgh.

Club in Pittsburgh.
"Did you have a drink there?" asked Chairman Hudson. "No."
"How do you know it was liquor?"
"I could smell it. I was only three feet from the bottles."

RENÉ FONCK
THE GREAT
FRENCH ACE

FOR all time, the name of René Fonck is written in history as a hero of France. This greatest of living aviators was decorated so often during the war that he has hardly room enough to wear his medals. Since the war he has added to his other honors by being elected a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

During his recent visit to this country, René Fonck became acquainted with Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale. Here is what he said about it:

"Never before have I been in a prohibition country. It is less arduous than I thought, and one thing that makes it so is this Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale. I think it is a delicious drink, refreshing and delicate in flavor. It is very dry—what in French we call Sec. Yes, Clicquot Club is a drink I thoroughly enjoy."

Two flavors to choose from

A drink of most delicate flavor when taken alone, the Pale Dry Clicquot also blends its subtle personality perfectly with other drinks. The Golden Clicquot is of more pronounced flavor, the famous drink that has made ginger ale America's most popular beverage. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Mass.

TWO DRIVERS HELD FOR AN AUTO FATALITY

Case That in Which Clarence Hiatt Was Hit When Standing on Street Corner.

The two automobile drivers who caused the death of Clarence Hiatt, 23 years old, of Overland, Mo., when their machines collided, Tuesday, were ordered held by a Coroner's jury today on charges of criminal carelessness.

Hiatt, who was an employee of the St. Louis Dairy Co., was standing on the southwest corner of Twentieth and Pine streets when he was struck and hurled 25 feet by the automobile of Elmer Koch, 19, of 415 Carter avenue, after it had collided with an eastbound automobile driven by William Hobbitt, a Negro, of 921 Elm street, Webster Groves. The accident occurred at 8:50 o'clock Tuesday morning and Hiatt died that afternoon at the city hospital of a fractured skull.

Melville B. Hall of 750 Radcliffe avenue, University City, testified at the inquest that he was driving behind Hobbitt's car, which he said was going at a moderate speed, when it struck Koch's automobile, which Hall stated was driving rapidly south in Twentieth street. The impact caused Koch's car to swerve into the curb, striking Hiatt. Fred Gogerty of 3646 Washington avenue, who was riding with Hobbitt, said that they were going slowly when they struck the other automobile which he said was moving at a speed of more than 30 miles an hour. Neither of the drivers took the stand.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED TO MAN WHO HAS KINDLED NINE FIRES

A new trial was granted by Circuit Judge Mix yesterday to William Kaufman, 23 years old, who has kindled nine fires here and caused $350,000 damage.

Kaufman was released from the State penitentiary Dec. 26 after serving part of a two-year term for arson, and renewed his incendiary career, resulting in his conviction and sentence of five years' imprisonment by a jury in Judge Mix's Court May 17. Kaufman was sentenced to prison for the second time in the face of medical testimony that he was "wholly insane" and should not be sent to the penitentiary as his first term there was without results, the prison not being equipped to handle such cases.

PROFESSOR'S FIANCEE BARRED U. S. Authorities Order Rumanian Stowaway Deported.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 17.—Immigration authorities ordered Mme. Melen Dasu, Rumanian, who arrived as a stowaway on the Conte Biancamano from Naples, deported yesterday even before her fiancé, Prof. Mark J. Longacre of the University of Pennsylvania, could arrange to return with her.

She returns to Italy on the same boat on which she arrived Tuesday. Prof. Longacre sails on Saturday with a party of students aboard the Orci, and as soon as he has discharged his duties with his students he will look up Mme. Dasu and they will wed. The pair met in Rumania and became engaged two years ago.

OPEN AIR OPERA A RARE TREAT FOR GROTTO VISITORS

Ten Thousand Persons Enjoy Production of "Chocolate Soldier," Many of Them for First Time.

Ten thousand visitors from north, east, south and west sat in the Municipal Theater in Forest Park last night. For the most part it was the first time they had seen such an open air production, and the rapt attention with which they gazed upon the spectacle of "The Chocolate Soldier," as conceived in the St. Louis open-air theater, was proof of their appreciation.

When the lights flashed out at 8:15 the huge auditorium was in turmoil. Horns were blowing, bagpipes were screeching and a dozen amateur choruses were singing as many different songs. The Velled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm—a Masonic social organization—were on a holiday and the entire Municipal Theater, by arrangement, was their playhouse. But when the stage lights revealed the broad stage with its towering trees and the novel setting of the first act, an attentive silence fell which continued throughout the performance except for occasional bursts of applause which swept down the hillside.

Whole Audience Cheers.
It was an ideal evening to "show off the opera." A soft breeze rustled through the leaves, and while there was a threat of rain in the air, the evening was comfortably cool. At the end of the first act the audience rose and cheered. The din broke out again and in the aisles groups of fazed visitors were heard praising fully the completeness of the Municipal Theater and the beauty of the production. It was a revelation to one who has watched the institution "grow up" during eight years.

Judge Frederick P. Walther of Cleveland, new Grand Monarch of the Prophets, was whole-hearted in his praise. "It is the most wonderful thing I have ever seen," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I have visited most of the open air theaters of the United States and last summer I saw a number of European out-door theaters. The only thing that comes anywhere near it is the open-air concert garden of the Swiss lakes. A powerful civic spirit must exist to build up an institution like this."

"Professional Perfection."
George A. Treadwell, of New Orleans, retiring Grand Monarch, had visited the theater once before and had visited all fresco productions in other cities. "Except St. Louis, they all seem to be experiments," he said. "They have an amateur air which is distracting. But your Municipal Theater is a finished product. The theater and the productions have a professional perfection. You have an institution without parallel."

George H. H. of Rochester, Grand Secretary of the order, added his voice to the praise. "The St. Louis theater offers a summer entertainment nowhere equaled," he declared. "There is nothing like it in any city I have visited. It is truly wonderful and a living demonstration of what community spirit can do."

Escape Heavy Showers.
The crowd, numbered more than 10,000, and was the largest ever in the theater. All seats were taken and several hundred persons stood under the shelter at the hilltop, marvelling at the operation of the amplifier which brought dialogue and music to their ears from the valley below.

Except for a few St. Louisans who had season reservations, the entire audience was made up of prophets and their families. In the intermission the visitors played in the aisles. Mayor Miller made a speech of welcome explaining that the cast, except for principals, was composed of St. Louisans. Grand Monarch Treadwell replied with the thanks of the Grotto. He borrowed the first comedian's line, "I'm an old man, but I surprise myself," and was punished by some 20 chorus girls who swarmed from the wings and carried him from the stage.

As the last chorus was sung a high wind swept into the theater, rocking the stage settings and snapping at the draperies. The audience departed hurriedly and some of the stragglers were caught in the first drops of a downpour.

CORPSE IN CASKET ON DUMP

An old iron casket, containing a body, was found yesterday on a dump in the rear of 4425 South Thirty-seventh street, and was removed to the morgue for identification. Police were told the casket had been hauled to the dump with a load of clay excavated during the grading of Compton avenue from Arsenal street to Gravois avenue, adjoining the site of the Old Pickers Cemetery. The driver was unaware of the contents of the "box."

DURAND MUST SERVE TERM

Illinois Supreme Court Upholds Conviction of Robbery.
By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 17.—The three to 30-year robbery sentence of Jack Durand, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand, wealthy Lake Forest residents, was affirmed by the Illinois Supreme Court yesterday. He was found guilty of robbing the home of F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., in Lake Forest.

MAN, 76, HIT BY BICYCLE RIDDEN ON SIDEWALK DIES

Robert Latham Was Run Down June 3 Near Shaw Avenue Home by Unidentified Boy.

Robert Latham, 76 years old, died yesterday at his home, 4569 Shaw avenue, of a fractured skull and internal injuries suffered June 2 when he was struck and knocked down by a bicycle ridden by a boy, who called help for the injured man, then disappeared without leaving his name.

After the accident police made an unsuccessful effort to find the boy, who was riding his bicycle on the sidewalk near Latham's home. They renewed their search yesterday following Latham's death.

Latham was employed as manager of a storeroom at the Banner Iron Works, 4569 Shaw, and was returning to the store, at 12:15 p. m., when he was struck. He was unable to give police a description of the boy.

The death was the second resulting here in the last 18 months from injuries suffered in this manner. Mrs. Alice Saunders, 70, of 5707 McPherson avenue being fatally injured in January, 1925, when struck by a bicycle ridden by Jack Bascom, 30, of 5715 McPherson, while she was walking near her home. Bascom was not prosecuted.

ODD ATTACK ON WOMAN WHO IDENTIFIED BOBBER

Man Shakes Handkerchief in Confectionery Clerk's Face, Temporarily Blinding Her.

A young man entered the James McGinn's Confectionery, 1213 Hickory street, at 7:40 o'clock last night, ordered a cigar and laid a dime on the counter. The clerk, Miss Minnie Virgin, 25 years old, of 1229 South Fourteenth street, served him and was reaching for the dime when he shook his handkerchief in her face, temporarily blinding her and ran out with the cigar and dime.

Miss Virgin's eyes were seriously inflamed. A physician who examined her said the handkerchief probably contained some chemical. Police believe there may be a connection between the incident and the fact that Miss Virgin went to the Souldard Police Station yesterday morning and identified a suspect as one of two men who held her up in the store June 14 and escaped with $9. Miss Virgin said the man who called last night was neither of the robbers.

Do Your Feet Hurt?

Consult the Foot Expert From Headquarters

Friday and Saturday

Visit our Foot Relief Department this week. Here—without any cost or obligation—you may have expert advice and an examination of your stockinged foot by a special representative direct from Wizard headquarters. You merely slip off your shoes just as you do in buying a new pair. The cause of your foot trouble will be revealed. A test fitting of Wizard Arch Builders will convince you quickly that your foot troubles are unnecessary. There is no obligation—and surely no inconvenience.

Wizard
Arch Builders

What you require to enjoy foot comfort is the proper support at the exact point to hold the bone structures of your feet in natural alignment. This is exactly what Wizard Arch Builders will do for you. Beneath their flexible leather soles are series of pockets at the arch, the ball and the heel.

Smooth inserts of any desired thickness may be placed in the pockets, providing support at the exact height and the right spot required by your feet. Arch, heel, ball and toe pains are relieved. Callouses gradually disappear. All because Wizard Arch Builders hold the bone structure of your feet in natural alignment.

GROTTO SUPREME COUNCIL ENDS ITS CONVENTION HERE

Last Official Function Is Luncheon to Past Monarchs, Other Officers and 850 Delegates.

The carnival spirit which has pervaded St. Louis since Monday will pass tonight. The thirty-seventh annual convention of the Supreme Council, Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm—a Masonic social organization—formally closed this morning, and the thousands of prophets are preparing to go home.

A few more events are scheduled for today, and then the exodus of tired visitors to their homes in various cities of the United States and Canada. With them will go the irresistible spirit of play which has drawn staid business men from their desks and tempted St. Louisans to take a holiday with the fezzed Prophets. Everybody, it seems, has had a good time.

1927 Convention at Cleveland. The business session at Alhambra Grotto this morning was short and snappy. Cleveland was selected as the convention city next year and at noon the last official act took place, with a luncheon to Supreme Council officers, past monarchs and the 850 authorized delegates.

In the afternoon there was a downtown parade of drill teams and bands which won honors in competitions held yesterday.

The informal delegates had their choice of a ride on the Steamer St. Paul or a visit to Forest Park Highlands, both of which had been taken over for them, or they could seek their own amusements. The three ones prepared for their homeward journey and the impossible ones have learned that St. Louis likes to watch them play.

Yesterday was another big day of the convention. There was a business session, a band contest, a drill contest, a mass band concert, an evening at the Municipal Opera, a midnight jamboree and numerous other events.

Thousands See Drill Contest. Forest Park was the playground of thousands of the visitors for the entire day. Several thousands of them gathered at the drill grounds at noon, packing the grandstand and forming a hollow square where drill teams wheeled and turned until after 5.

One by one the teams marched in the square, each an exotic picture of oddly blending colors. With swords, sabres and rifles they obeyed the sharp commands of their leaders, while two Jefferson Barracks officers took notes on form, and the audience cheered its favorites.

Prepared against emergency, ambulances were in readiness and a first-aid tent was raised at the west edge of the field. A few prophets who grew dizzy under the warm sun and their elaborate costumes were relieved by the attending physician.

First Prize to Indianapolis. Sahara Grotto of Indianapolis, led by M. F. Scully, won first prize in the first division, with a 94.77 per cent perfect score. Oola-Khan Grotto, Cincinnati, led by Leonard R. Howes, won first place in the second division, with a 94.48 per cent score.

Meanwhile, at the Municipal Theater another crowd was gathering for the mass band concert at 4 p. m. Under a burning sun, hundreds of parasols of every hue, not to mention many more old-fashioned black umbrellas, created an odd picture. The shelters and the refreshment stands were popular and the "hot dog," "soda pop," and ice cream merchants did a big business.

Some of the musicians apparently got lost in the confusion of so many things to do. It had been announced that 1500 players would join in the biggest band concert ever held. Director Edgar R. Robinson, of Amrita Grotto, Fort Smith, Ark., began the concert with about 250 musicians and about 100 more straggled in as it proceeded.

Feature of Band Program. The featured number was a first rendition of "The Grand Monarch's March," written by Carl Rupp of Cleveland, and dedicated to incoming Grand Monarch Walther.

From the stage was announced the winners of the band contest held during the morning at Scottish Rite Cathedral. Al Sirat Band of Cleveland won over four other contestants in the first division of the contest, scoring 58 of a possible 60 points. Amra Grotto Band of Knoxville, Tenn., won first honors in the second division, in which six bands competed, scoring 52 points. Sahara Grotto Band of Indianapolis and Nazir Grotto of Canton, O., were second in the respective divisions.

At the morning session grand officers for 1926-27 were elected by acclamation. Judge Frederick P. Walther of Cleveland, was elected grand monarch; George J. Brenner, Saginaw, Mich., deputy grand monarch; John A. Dirlbeck, Brooklyn, grand chief justice; Edward W. Libbey, Washington, master of ceremonies; Charles M. Colton, Rochester, N. Y., grand treasurer and George E. Hatch of Rochester, grand secretary.

Grotesque Parade at Night. The downtown which burst forth shortly after 11 p. m. did not dampen the carnival spirit of the day.

A pajama parade had been announced by Al Sirat Grotto, Cleveland, with headquarters at Hotel Stadler, and it was known that other Grottoes would try to come in for some of the glory. At 9 o'clock the downtown streets were jammed with automobiles and pedestrians waiting for something to happen. It did. Groups of prophets clad in grotesque costumes entertained the crowds, occasionally directed traffic until it became hopelessly jammed. Cowbells, trumpets, horns and a thousand other noisemakers were in evidence. When the rain fell the merrymakers and their audience fled to what available shelters they could find. At the Stadler the management had wisely removed all furniture from the lobby and there Al Sirat Grotto "did its stuff." Pajamas that hurt the eyes were everywhere in evidence, men dressed as women, as clowns, and some in costumes that represented nothing in particular. In all the downtown hotels there were dancing, singing and horseplay. It was past 3 o'clock when the revelry ceased, and the sun was rising when the last of the prophets retired.

Evolutionism vs. Lutheranism

The Lutheran Church teaches and believes with the Bible that man is created by a special act of God and therefore has not evolved from a lower creature, but was created righteous and sinless, in the image of God. From this high estate man has fallen into sin and degenerated and must be lifted out of sin and cleansed through the blood of Jesus Christ.

Placed by a Layman of the Lutheran Church.

Motor Trails Are Calling You

A car of your own—a wonderful country to explore—you can travel with the carefree joy of a gypsy! Near you—wherever you may live—are thrilling pleasure places. The Middle West is full of romance, wonder and beauty—waiting for you at every turn of the road.

Fill the tank with Red Crown, get a road map, and start tomorrow. This list is a mere suggestion of the joy ahead—on the highways of the Middle West.

- 1—Harney's Peak, in South Dakota, the highest point between the Atlantic Coast and the Rocky Mountains with the "Cathedral Spires" down its sides. State Highways No. 36 and No. 85.
- 2—Fort Riley, Kansas, the largest cavalry school in the United States. Union Pacific Highway No. 10.
- 3—The north woods of Michigan, at the lower tip of the upper peninsula, the home of deer and other game. Use the picturesque Mackinaw Trail. State Highway No. 11.
- 4—A huge bowl of solid rock, thirty feet deep—the novel Round Spring of Missouri. Water flows from this spring to join Current River, one of the swift, clear streams of the Ozarks. Round Spring State Park, twelve miles north of Eminence on Highway No. 19.
- 5—The Pembina State Park, North Dakota, at the junction of the Red and Pembina Rivers. Includes the site of the first trading post in the state built by Chabolez in 1797. State Highway No. 1.
- 6—Elsah, Illinois, a little mediaeval town, narrow streets, houses abutting the walks—a picture of peasant Europe. Near East Newbern which is on State Highway No. 3.
- 7—Little Wall Lake, Hamilton County, Iowa. Wonderful pond lilies—the rare red shield lily (Brasenia). Near Jewell, State Highway No. 15.
- 8—The Mississippi Headwaters District of Minnesota. Hundreds of lakes of all sizes. Finest fishing. Wild rugged country where the pine forests begin and wild life is abundant. Grand Rapids on State Highway No. 8, Walker on State Highway No. 19.
- 9—Clam and pearl fisheries about Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin. State Highway No. 35.
- 10—Marengo Cave, Crawford County, Indiana, most beautiful limestone cave in the United States, but not commonly known except to scientists. State Highway No. 22 from Indianapolis.

Motoring is sheer delight on the smooth highways of the Middle West. You can penetrate to the most remote corner of the country in your car, for you will find good roads and Red Crown Gasoline everywhere, throughout the entire Middle West. The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has established Service Stations for your convenience along all the roads of this great section.

Perfect motoring facilities are for you to enjoy. Heed the call of the wanderlust—there's joy ahead.

WOMAN HELD FOR BURNING
MAN TO DEATH WITH ACID
Prisoner Said to Admit Dashing Poison on Victim After Quarrel Over Her Daughter.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—
Shortly after he had sought a reconciliation with his wife, from whom he had been estranged for three years, Louis Kramer, 42, was burned to death with acid. Mrs. Sad-die Yankolovitz and her daughter, Yetta, 14, who lived in the house where Kramer had stopped since leaving his wife, were held for questioning.

Kramer was found yesterday lying on the steps of a drug store trying to tear the clothing from his body. A motorist took him to a hospital, where he died. Flesh on his head, breast and arms had been seared with acid, which, unchecked for more than half an hour, had burned almost to the bone.
Mrs. Yankolovitz, arrested in the office of an attorney, at first denied knowledge of the affair. Later, police said she admitted throwing the acid on the man when he quarreled with her daughter. The woman had been burned by the same kind of acid.

timated delegates to the Grotto convention would spend at least $600,000 in St. Louis. Charles P.
Hatfield, secretary and general manager, reported that 64 conventions and four similar events had been held here since the last report.

Frederick H. Rein, director of conventions and publicity, reported 50 conventions and seven other events had been obtained for St.
Louis since the last meeting.

of J. B. Lassetter.

By the Associated Press.
EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., June 17.—Carl C. Magee, stormy petrel of New Mexico politics, by a directed verdict last night, was freed of a charge of manslaughter in the shooting of Jno. B. Lassetter, Highway Department engineer, here last August.

Lassetter was killed by a bullet intended for former Judge David J. Leahy, political enemy of Magee, who was one of the principal witnesses for the State yesterday. Leahy, on the witness stand, admitted that he was the aggressor in the fight in a hotel lobby here that ended in Magee firing three shots. One shot killed Lassetter and another struck Leahy in the arm.

District Judge Armijo, by directing a verdict of not guilty, took the case out of the hands of a jury composed of two men who could speak and understand English and 10 men for whom it was necessary to translate testimony.

"Only This Court Could Do,"
"It was the only thing the Court could do, in my judgment," declared District Attorney Hunker, the prosecutor.

The directed verdict came at the end of a two-day trial during which the prosecution introduced the testimony of eight witnesses, including Leahy.

Leahy and others testified that Magee fired the shots which killed Lassetter, while he (Magee) was lying on the floor of the lobby of a local hotel where the fight took place. Leahy had knocked Magee down and was beating and kicking him when Magee drew his revolver. Lassetter was struck by the bullets while he was attempting to pull Leahy off the editor on the floor.

Magee and Leahy had been bitter personal enemies for several years, the judge having tried the editor twice for published statements attacking the courts. Magee was convicted each time but escaped imprisonment when Gov. Hinkle promptly pardoned him.

Leahy admitted he was the aggressor in the fight, striking Magee as he sat on a divan. He declared that Magee had expressed a wish in a newspaper article to meet him "man to man."

Leahy Admits He Started It.
"I didn't feel like starting anything so long as I held the position of Judge," Leahy testified. "But when I saw Magee in the hotel lobby my memory of those attacks came back to me and I instantly decided to give him the opportunity to meet me, man to man. I walked up to him and said: 'We meet, man to man, now.'"

"Magee didn't say anything," Leahy's story of the fight agreed with that of James Wheaton, an electrician, and H. W. Kelly, who witnessed the shooting.

WELCH & CO. 1105-7-9 OLIVE ST.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Every session of the Reed Investigating Committee has risen at some point to a climax like the "traditional" third act of a melodrama. At yesterday afternoon's session, the audience got its greatest thrill from the fiery cross examination of Mayor Charles H. Kline of Pittsburgh by Senator King of Utah. During the Pennsylvania campaign, which the Senate committee is now investigating, Mayor Kline went about the city addressing meetings of the city employees. He spoke at least once in each of the 28 wards of the city. The speech which he made at those "payroll meetings," as they were called, came to be known as the Mayor's "bread-and-butter speech." The gist of it was that the city employees who had due regard for their bread and butter would turn out and work for the Pepper ticket in the primary.

The city editor of the Pittsburgh Press, an evening newspaper that refused to join in the general journalistic hymning of the pious Mayor, sent a short-hand reporter around to find out just what the Mayor was saying. From the transcript of his notes, the enterprising Press man made a corking and significant story which it ran under the heading: "Mayor Scrapes Civil Service."

Warning to City Employees.

The Mayor, according to this news story, made a lot of pungent and practical remarks to an audience of firemen, policemen, hospital nurses, scrub women and others on the city payroll. He told them, the article said, that if anybody "cheated" (to "cheat," is Pennsylvania political terminology means to draw pay one way and vote another) he or she would be separated from the payroll on the day after the primary. The Mayor said, to quote the Press again, that he would know who the "cheaters" were, and that the civil service laws of the city, which forbade the discharge of any person for political reasons, would not save them.

This speech by the Mayor was mentioned at a committee hearing the other day, and Chairman Reed promptly ordered the Mayor summoned.

Before he put Kline in the witness chair, Reed called W. A. White, the city editor responsible for the story. White related the circumstances of its publication and identified it in a copy of his paper. With great gusto to the audience's enjoyment of himself and the audience—all except the Mayor—the Senator read the quoted speech.

Mayor Kline, as quoted, said that this was his, Charles Kline's, fight, and he proposed to see it through to the bitter end. He said that if the employees didn't like the bread and butter they were getting in Pittsburgh, they were welcome to go over to Philadelphia and try Mr. Ware's bread and butter. He said they had "dandy" butter there in Philadelphia. There was much more along the same line, and Reed read it all with appropriate oratorical flourishes.

At the same meeting there was a speech by former Mayor Armstrong of Pittsburgh, who called himself "Barroom Joe" and boasted that he had held more public offices than any other man in the State of Pennsylvania. "Barroom Joe" spoke in the same vein as the Mayor. He promised that those who voted right in the primary—Pepper ticket—would receive "comfort, succor and aid."

"Now, boys and women," said "Barroom Joe," "love those that's loving you."

The speeches appear to have made a hit. The Mayor at any rate, as quoted as having said, "Thanks for the applause."

When the hilarity in the committee room had died down, Reed got the newspaper man to tell about political conditions in Pittsburgh. White said there had been frequent charges of vote-buying, ballot box stuffing and other forms of corruption in the city elections. During the last campaign, he said, it was common talk that "Mellon is spending a lot of money."

"Loosening Up" of Town.

Reed asked him to what extent the machine in Pittsburgh was maintained through catering to the criminal elements, and the witness replied that it was a noticeable fact that during a campaign "the town runs wide open—everything loosens up."

Mayor on Stand.

Mayor Kline, a heavy-set, heavy-voiced man, was called forward. He said that he had been Mayor since the first of the year, before which time he was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

"Did you make that speech?" asked Reed. "No, sir," said the Mayor. "Of course, was not satis-

Mayor was saying. From the transcript of his notes, the enterprising Press made a corking and significant story which it ran under the heading: "Mayor Scraps Civil Service."

Warning to City Employes.
The Mayor, according to this news story, made a number of practical remarks to an audience of firemen, policemen, hospital nurses, scrub women and others on the city payroll. He told them, the article said, that if anybody "cheated" (to "cheat," in Pennsylvania political terminology, means to draw money away from one another) he or she would be separated from the payroll on the day after the primary. The Mayor said, to quote the Press again, that he would know who the "cheaters" were, and that the city would not let them stay on the payroll.
This speech by the Mayor was mentioned at a committee hearing the other day, and Chairman Reed promptly ordered the Mayor summoned.

Before he put Kline in the witness chair, Reed called W. A.
White, the city editor responsible for the story. White related the circumstances of its publication and identified it in a copy of his copy. With this in mind, the audience—all except the Mayor
—the Senator read the quoted speech.

"Comfort, Succor and Aid."
Mayor Kline, as quoted, said that he was, Charles Kline, fighting the bitter end. He said that if the employes didn't like the bread and butter they were getting in Pittsburgh, they were welcome to go over to Philadelphia and try Mr.
Barrow's bread and butter. He said that he was "buddy" with them in Pittsburgh. There was much more along the same line, and Reed read it all with appropriate oratorical flourishes.

At the same meeting there was a speech by former Mayor Armstrong of Pittsburgh, who called himself "Barroom Joe" and boasted that he had more public offices than any other man in the State of Pennsylvania. "Barroom Joe" spoke in the same vein as the Mayor. He promised that those who voted right in the primary—that is, for the Pepper-Pittsburgh ticket—would receive "comfort, succor and aid."

"Now, boys and women," said
"Barroom Joe," "love those that love you."

The speeches appear to have made a hit. The Mayor at any rate, as quoted as having said, thanks for the applause.

When the hilarity in the committee room had died down, Reed asked the newspaper man to tell about political conditions in Pittsburgh. White said there had been recent charges of vote-buying, bribe stuffing and other forms of corruption in the city elections.
During the last campaign, he said, it was common talk that "Mellon was spending a lot of money."

"Loosening Up" of Town.
Reed asked him to what extent the machine in Pittsburgh was maintained through catering to the political elements, and the witness replied that it was a noticeable fact that during a campaign "the town was wide open—everything loosens up."

Mayor on Stand.
Mayor Kline, a heavy-set, heavy-eyed man, was called forward.
He said that he had been Mayor since the first of the year, before any time he was a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

"Did you make that speech?"
asked Reed. "No, sir," said the Mayor. "Of course, was not satis-

SENATOR SCHALL MAKES SLASHING ATTACK ON FOES

Refers to Magnus Johnson, Who Contested His Seat, as Marionette Moved by String.

CALLS OPPOSING ATTORNEY 'SHYSTER'

Ashhurst Urges Him to Withdraw Remarks, Which "He Will Regret as Years Roll On."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Senate was stunned by the impact of a vitriolic verbal bombshell fired yesterday by Thomas D. Schall (Rep.), who had just been declared the duly elected junior Senator from Minnesota over former Senator Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor, who had contested his election.

Midway in the reading of a clerk of a speech by the blind Senator, following the Senate's acceptance of the elections committee's unanimous report recommending the seating of Schall and the dismissal of the contest, Senator Ashhurst (Dem.) of Arizona, appealed to him to withdraw his remarks on the ground that "as the years roll on, he will regret this speech."

Refuses to Desist.
Senator Schall, however, insisting upon the "right to be heard for four minutes at least," declined to accede and insisted upon the clerk continuing until all but the conclusion had been read. Then he said he would be "satisfied" if the rest "which will not take more than a minute," were included in the record.

The concluding paragraph declared that "so far as Magnus is concerned, he never knew what it was all about—he was only the marionette who kicked and waved his hands and opened his mouth according to the tension of the string."

"However, he must have known," Senator Schall's speech said, "that the petition that he was induced to sign was false, else he could not have gone on the stand in substantiation of the pretended charges. I do not believe that a man whose morality is so blunted that he will allow his name to be used for criminal libel is a fit candidate for any office."

Takes Shot at Committee.
Schall's speech began by referring to the contest as "the first move in a well-thought-out and extensively organized, highly financed plan of malicious character assassination, calculated to assault the honor and integrity of the Senate and the Republic."

The committee, it continued,
"was unduly considerate and extremely fair to everyone but me in letting in nefarious, manufactured, hearsay slander and unfounded accusations of an unprin-ciple attorney. Suffering these outrages, I did not then realize, as I do now, that the best way to get rid of skunks is to allow them to come out in the open where you can get a shot at them. The framers of this persecution expected no positive results except to hold me and smear me with their slime."

Assails Johnson's Lawyer.
Donald Hughes, Johnson's attorney, Senator Schall's speech declared, was "well known as a confession of guilt, and was placed in charge of the case because of his cunning, rattle tendencies and his extensive association with crooks and perjurers."

Later Hughes was described as a "crooked, unprincipled, blackmailing pettifogger."

The speech declared that Senator Schall had been opposed by a sinister influence, with its vast power distributed throughout the State, with all its strength by fair and false means, mostly foul, in the election, and was "manifestly enraged at my victory."

"My Conscience Sees."
At this point Senator Ashhurst appealed to Schall to withdraw his remarks, but the Minnesota Senator, appealing to the "souls" of Senators to bear with him, insisted on having the speech read. He declared that the charges against him had been given wide publicity and had never been denied.

"The trouble is not that I am blind—the trouble with these people is that my conscience sees," he shouted. "The eyes do not matter if you keep the soul clean."

At the conclusion of the reading of the speech Senator Frazier

How the Free Bridge Could Be Put to Work at Once

City Already Authorized to Build South Approach, Alton & Southern Willing to Construct Gratiot St. Extension.

THIS diagram illustrates the simple plan for use of the railroad deck of the municipal bridge proposed by Mayor Miller by C. B. Fox, president of the Alton & Southern Railroad, an east side belt line.

It relies for effectiveness upon stimulation of competition among the roads. It seeks, as an opening wedge, to make it profitable for one or more roads to use the bridge and, therefore, to make it unprofitable for the other roads not to use it. If one or more roads by using the bridge are enabled to decrease the time required to move freight in and out of St. Louis and to reduce their charge for that movement, other roads would be thrust into a disadvantageous position in the solicitation of freight among shippers. Railroads base their solicitation of freight upon service and rate.

Fox's plan would confer that initial advantage upon the Missouri Pacific, the largest freight line in this district, measured by tonnage. The Missouri Pacific handles more than 20 per cent of all the carload freight coming into or going out of St. Louis. It handles more than twice as many carloads as any other railroad. It carries 25 per cent of all the industries in the St. Louis district. The Terminal serves few more—23 per cent.

The Fox plan proposes for the Missouri Pacific a connection over the municipal bridge with all the trunk line railroads running east and west. Conversely all freight coming from the east could move over the bridge and, if going to the south and southwest, could reach that territory by delivery to the Missouri Pacific.

Expense Already Authorized.
Fox's plan would require no expenditure by the city not now authorized. His belt line railroad is connected with the east end of the bridge at Twenty-ninth street, East St. Louis. In turn, it is connected also with all the big trunk lines running into St. Louis from the East. Thus, all East Side roads can reach the bridge with freight without the construction of a single additional facility.

A one short connection, not now authorized, is required on the West Side. That is a double track in Gratiot street between Seventh and the railroad deck, and Fourteenth street, where it would connect with the Missouri Pacific's southwestern lines.

The construction of the south approach to the bridge, directed by voters, would connect the Missouri Pacific's Iron Mountain lines with the bridge, also the Manufacturers' Railroad, a West Side belt serving 250, or about 12 per cent, of the industries on the west side of the river.

It is thought certain that, provided with this connection and such a decided advantage over its competitors, the Missouri Pacific at once would begin sending a large volume of freight over the Municipal Bridge.

Out in Charges Anticipated.
The Terminal Railroad's fixed tariff charge of $10 to $12 a car imposed upon all freight moving across the river falls most heavily upon the Missouri Pacific, because of the large volume of freight it transfers from one bank to the other. Fox has estimated that use of the municipal bridge, upon a charge sufficient only to pay for its actual operation and maintenance, would result in a reduction of the crossing charges to $1, which, of course, would give the Missouri Pacific a great advantage over its competitors and compel them to seek the advantage of the municipal bridge also.

The Frisco, Wabash and Rock (Rep.) of North Dakota declared that some people in Minnesota "thought there was something to the contest." He moved that the proceedings of the committee, including all evidence, arguments of counsel and findings, be printed.
Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, who had opposed the motion when made bor) of Minnesota, prior to the DECISION OPENS DEFUNCT BANKS

AFFAIRS TO PUBLIC

Supreme Court, in Contempt Case, Holds "Bank Secrecy" Law to Be Unconstitutional.

SAYS LEGISLATURE EXCEEDED POWERS

Discrimination Found in Act Giving Access to Facts to Certain Governmental Agencies.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 17.—
The "bank secrecy" law, which has placed an official cloak of secrecy about the condition and affairs of wrecked and defunct State banks, except where the information is required to be produced as evidence in a criminal proceeding, was declared unconstitutional in a decision today by the Missouri Supreme Court in banc. Judge
T. White, author of the opinion, scored in unequivocal language the attempted concealment, through a statute, of the affairs of defunct banks and the acts of those responsible for wrecking banks.

"What public interest can be served by concealing the methods by which banks are guided to destruction by those entrusted with their control?" he wrote. "Ordinarily we would say the public is entitled to know all about the inside jobs which cause banks to fail, because through such knowledge the people's representatives may apply a remedy for the conditions revealed."

"So far as appears on the surface," he declared, "the only purpose of the secrecy of concealment of such conditions would be those concerned with bringing them about."

Involved Contempt Case.
The decision involved a contempt of court judgment by Adair County Circuit Court against State Finance Commissioner C. E. French, for his refusal to produce records of examinations by the Finance Department of the defunct Union Bank of Novinger, Mo., after they had been subpoenaed for a civil suit at Kirksville. The suit grew out of failure of the bank several years ago.

Commissioner French refused to testify when he was placed on the witness stand or to produce the bank records which were in his possession. His refusal was on advice of the Attorney-General, under the "secrecy" law which prohibits from divulging information obtained in examination of a bank except in a criminal proceeding and except to certain banking organizations.

French was ordered to jail, but the confinement was constructive.
He filed an application in Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus to obtain his release and at the same time obtain a construction of the law. Attorneys for the litigant who subpoenaed the records appeared for the sheriff of Adair County against whom the writ was directed and attacked constitution-ality of the law.

The decision today upholds the judgment of contempt and re-mands Commissioner French to the custody of the Sheriff, until he produces the desired records and testifies.

Law Recently Amended.
Section No. 11,475 of the revised statutes is the so-called "secrecy" law. It was amended at the last session of the Legislature, by insertion of the word "criminal" in one sentence, thereby preventing the production of records or summoning of the commissioner or his deputies as witnesses in a civil suit.
The amendment in effect nullified a Supreme Court decision early in 1922 holding that Frank C. Millspaugh, then Finance Commissioner, could be compelled to testify concerning condition of a bank in a civil case.

The word "criminal" was inserted in the law in connection with an amendment purporting only to take on the provision giving the State Treasurer access to reports on examinations of banks that were State depositories. The law was amended before French became Finance Commissioner and he had no part in the amendment.

Judge White held the Legislature had exceeded its constitutional authority in attempting to forbid the production of such evidence in civil cases.

"The only theory upon which the Commissioner can be restrained from divulging what he learns in his examination of banks and from producing in court the records in his custody," Judge White wrote, "is on the ground of public policy; that some public interest may be adversely affected by disclosure of such information."

FARM BILL DEBATE
TURNS ON TARIFF

Robinson of Arkansas Proposes Democratic Coalition With Westerners to Lower Duties

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 17.—Senate debate on the McNary farm bill developed into a discussion of the farmers' troubles, which were said to be the "so-called education" and a Governmental plundering system, yesterday.

Discussion centered mostly on the tariff as the chief difficulty and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, recommended a coalition of the Democrats and the wheat-growing West against the tariff.

"I am going to suggest to the Democrats in good faith," he said,
"to join hands with the wheat farmers of the Northwest to tear down this tariff wall and stop this plundering system that has disgusted the farmers of the nation."

Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho said he had had serious doubts about the economic phase of the bill, but thought the Mellon letter made the best argument for the tariff. He said he had heard that if the protective tariff were sound.

"If he is correct in his argument," added the senator, "we are simply applying the tariff to the farmer."

Walsh Against Bill.
Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, expressed the view that while something should be done to compensate the farmer, the equalization fee as embraced in the Mc-Nary bill was unconstitutional. The logical and sensible way, he added is to scale down the tariff. It is

Would Interfere with Mail.
Congressman Dyer said at that time that if the location is to be changed civil groups must assert themselves.

The City Planning Commission has told the Finance Department that use of the Fourth street site would interfere with its plan for a mall to run from the old courthouse to the river.

The motion of the Building Trades Council is to call attention of the Memorial Plaza Commission to the council's attitude. This committee, which carried on the successful campaign to have the new civic courthouse erected facing the plaza instead of on Broadway, has not entered into the Federal Building discussion. Several organizations, including the Merchants Exchange, joined with downtown bankers in a telegram to the St.
Louis congressional delegation
Tuesday insisting on use of the Fourth street site. The Chamber of Commerce directors indicated their willingness to join in this instance.

Carrier Issues Statement.
In the campaign to pass the city bond issue of 1922, which provided for Memorial Plaza and the civic courthouse, wide use was made of an architectural conception of the appearance of the plaza, surrounded by public structures, including a proposed Federal building. There was no commitment to put the Federal structure, however. W. Frank Carter, a leader in the bond issue campaign and now chairman of the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee, made the following statement today:

"I am not going to make any move to change the location of the Federal Building. I have never made any promise to anybody to do such a thing, and I would not, for the reason that I solicited participation in the bond issue campaign to buy that property at Fourth and Chestnut streets."

Had Price Reduced.
"As you know, the Government only appropriated $200,000 and as much as had to have considerably more than that amount. A proposed Federal building was raised by contributions from the property owners in that district."

"I think it would be bad faith not to locate the building at the southeast corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets. I am familiar with the facts because I closed the deal with the Government."

Owners of the Fourth street lot had asked $350,000 for it. Property holders in the district who wanted the Government to get it checked a reduction of the price to $330,000 and paid the $20,000 excess over the appropriation themselves. For years the lot has been used for automobile parking.

Brookhart's Victory.
The defeat of Senator Cummins by Brookhart in the primaries is a cause of some satisfaction to liberal Republicans in Iowa.

Cummins was one of the two Senators from this State who voted for the eighteenth amendment, the other being Senator Kenyon, who discreetly accepted a Federal judgeship. Both these men voted for the eighteenth amendment in spite of the fact that the majority of the people of Iowa turned down by referendum vote in 1900 the proposed State constitutional prohibition amendment. Both these men, especially Kenyon, were always loud in declaring that they believed in "letting the people rule."

Neither of them ever attempted to explain to the voters of Iowa why they held their personal opinions govern them in this matter. Now that Cummins is in the ranks of the "lame-duck" army he will have more time to think over such matters; while rather late in his political day, he may offer some reason for his peculiar course. WALTER BRENN.

Sunday Closing for Filling Stations.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN the People's Column an article appeared by "A Filling Station Owner," objecting to closing Sundays. Is he hungry for money, or is business slow? Let him stay open 24 hours a day, during the week, then he can close Sundays either half day or all day.

It would be a good law for the Board of Aldermen to pass. I buy my gas regularly, and fill up my tank. I can do this Saturdays if necessary—and I always do lots of milking on Sundays—in let the filling station men have a holiday. I want my Sundays off; they are entitled to it, too, after the hours they put in all week. People that buy gas on the East Side to save 2 cents show ignorance in appreciating their neighborhood service station, where they come for advice and free air.

Our filling stations are open many hours between Monday morning and Saturday night, and time can be found by all in this period to take care of the machine for a Sunday spin.

"AN AUTOMOBILE OWNER."

Down on the Flappers.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MAY I say just a word in response to Miss 1926? Miss 1926 sure has the measure of the "sheiks." She is to be complimented for so well expressing her opinion of them; but she is wrong when she says there are only two types of girls to wit, "Flappers, clinging vines and prudes." The clinging vine or prude is much to be preferred to the flapper for the reason that they at least have her respect.

The flapper places herself in a class with the sheik. Is she not out hunting him to get him to pay the expense of her entertainment and luxuries? The flapper considers a man her legitimate prey. The sheik considers the flapper in his class, and if he can beat her at her own game he thinks he is smooth.

Fortunately, the men—not sheiks—there is a girl of the type Miss 1926 does not seem to know. She is Miss Independent. She can pay her way and have a good time without a man. She can entertain a gentleman in her home or in society. She can have a good time without being soured, or without smoking cigarettes. In fact, she is a girl of good common sense, the kind we men like and would be proud to win for a wife. The kind we must respect. She is neither a flapper, a prude nor a clinging vine; and does not wear makeup. We love her for herself, her charm and gracious manner is more admirable than any flapper's makeup.

Correction Already made.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR newspaper has stood so consistently for a square deal that I am sure you will give space to my reply to a letter recently published on your editorial page, which grossly misstates the facts as to the situation in Missouri.

You have the undoubted right to think as you please, but a grave misstatement such as the one appearing in this letter should be corrected in order that a square deal may be given to all parties concerned. This letter says "It is an uncontested fact that a majority of the people of Missouri have voted wet at every referendum on the wet and dry issue in the State's history." The author must be poorly informed. Otherwise he would know that in 1920 this State voted on the question as to whether it should sustain the State-wide enforcement act, passed by the Legislature in 1919. Missouri voted in favor of sustaining this law by more than 60,000 majority. In other words, at the last direct referendum held on this subject, the State voted dry. It is not a question as to whether the State would vote in the same way this year. What we owe to the public is a correct statement of the facts.

GEO. B. MANGOLD.

A GUN BEHIND THE DOOR.

We agree with President Coolidge that compulsory military training in colleges is not fair to college students subject to it. We believe it is good for them. We believe that military training is an exceedingly valuable factor in the development of the minds and bodies of young men and for discipline. We believe that the faculties of colleges are thoroughly justified in putting it into the curricula, and not only in offering opportunity but inducements to undertake the work.

So long, however, as the young men of the country not in colleges are not subject to any compulsion with regard to military training, and are merely offered the opportunity to obtain it in military camps; since the training has to do not merely with educational preparation but with actual service in case of war, we think all should be put on the same basis. The compulsion should be universal, not merely special to certain groups.

We disagree completely with the arguments of the pacifists against military training either in or out of the colleges. We do not hold that it is militaristic. We do not hold that the training of citizens as citizen soldiers in preparation, not to serve in the army during peace, but only for the possible emergency of war, tends to militarism. It is nothing more than a sensible policy for the protection of the country against aggression, and for the protection of citizens themselves who may be called upon to defend the country.

The pacifists say that war should be outlawed and that same and wise preparations for a war emergency tend to promote war. It is false reasoning. Granting that war should be outlawed, one nation cannot outlaw war. War can only be outlawed when the leading nations in concert outlaw it and offer to all nations a bulwark against aggressive war. The history of the world since the great war to put an end to war is sufficient proof of the folly of trusting to a mere sentiment against war, instead of definite safeguards.

Whatever may be thought of our policy of isolation, nevertheless we are following that policy. The League of Nations has not proved that under its present direction it has either the will or the power to prevent war. War continues to be a possibility, and the nation which ignores this condition and lives in a fool's paradise of sentimental outlawry of war, and unpreparedness for war, may have a bitter and disastrous disillusion. Particularly is this true of a great and prosperous nation which is the target of world-wide envy and covert animosity.

We believe it to be sound policy on the part of the United States to make a certain amount of military training compulsory and thus build up a great reserve of citizen soldiery which would enable us to reduce our standing army and armaments to a minimum. We hold that we ought to use all of our influence and engage in every legitimate kind of effort for peace, but keep a gun behind the door for any aggressive and lawless nation or combination of nations that has not the will to peace.

THE CATHEDRAL DEMONSTRATION.

The religious procession planned for the night of June 29, following the dedication of the St. Louis Cathedral, will be certain to attract a great gathering. This is the reason for taking outside the cathedral walls an exercise of devotion which ordinarily would be completed within the building. The authorities of the diocese have wisely recognized that not only the host of Catholics in St. Louis, but the public at large, will wish to see this procession, in which several members of the College of Cardinals will participate.

In view of this great public interest, forecast by the New York demonstrations of the past few days and the plans for the Chicago gathering next week, it would seem that the route planned, two blocks in length, is not long enough. St. Louis learned, in the downtown plaza fiasco of the State Centennial celebration in 1921, that outdoor space, as well as indoor space, has its limits of capacity. No one was seriously injured then, which is an added argument against taking chances again on such a condition of danger.

By extending the route of the procession from Taylor avenue to Kingshighway, or even to Euclid avenue, or by adding a block or two east of Newstead, with a countermarch on Lindell, space would be afforded many added thousands of spectators. This could be done without unduly taxing the strength of the visitors, some of them elderly men, who are to take part in the solemn ceremonial.

That engagement between the Missouri blacksnake and the Texas rattler will probably be a battle royal, but we should prefer a ringside seat in Washington, D. C., when Jim Reed folds Wayne Wheeler in fond embrace.

THE MOLLYCODDLED CRIMINAL.

A well-known psychiatrist has found, after an exhaustive study of criminals, that only 5 per cent of them can be in any way considered irresponsible, and he holds himself, his cult and criminologists largely to blame for creating a public thought that "all criminals must be sick." The public reaction was a "misdirected soft-heartedness, a weakening of respect for the courts and the police powers" and there arose an "absurd overindulgence and coddling of prisoners." It is Dr. Louis E. Bish who presents his views on the subject in the last Saturday Evening Post under the title "The Inside of the Criminal Mind."

The doctor frankly admits that when he began his studies of the criminal mind, in the "laboratory" of the New York Police Department, he "felt the criminal must have a kink in him somewhere. . . . and should not be held strictly accountable for his acts." It is apparent that this scientist is still groping for some solution of the problem. He has progressed only so far as to recommend the elimination of prison favoritism, including special diets for wealthy prisoners, and the "ridiculous shortening of sentences for good behavior." He favors any restriction "outside of cruelty" which will make the criminal feel "he is being punished" and "not temporarily inconvenienced."

The statement is made that "the cost of crime in all its phases is $10,000,000,000 a year, and the worst of it is that the cost of crime and the number of criminals are both steadily mounting." Both will doubtless continue to mount as long as administration of criminal justice continues to be the farce it now is. Swift, certain and just punishment for the convicted criminal may help to solve our crime problem. It is certainly worth trying.

Of course, in the case of youths and first offenders, who have not been hardened, every opportunity should be given to restore them to society by the use of discriminating leniency.

MISLEADING STATEMENTS.

The Globe-Democrat in its Wednesday editorial states that the Municipal Bridge has never served its purpose because it has "no railroad connections on the East Side." Let us call their attention to the fact that on May 5 Mayor Miller, with seven city officials and a party of local freight agents and their guests, 500 strong, in an eight-car passenger train, after using the Missouri Pacific, the Illinois Central and the Alton & Southern tracks, crossed over the Free Bridge into the city of St. Louis.

The same editorial truly states that "The city cannot say (to the Terminal railroads) this or that must be done. It has tried that method and ignominiously failed." This statement is an abject acknowledgment on the part of the Globe-Democrat that they believe the Terminal Railroad possesses a monopolistic and unbreakable throttle-hold on all railroad traffic movements into and out of St. Louis.

We do not agree, however, with that paper that "they are under no urgent necessity to do a thing unless it pleases them." In this connection it should be pointed out that in 1929-30 there are many millions in bond issues coming due, on the Eads Bridge, the Merchants' Bridge and the Merchants' Elevated, and to refund these huge sums of money on favorable terms the Terminal railroads must secure from the city a renewal of these franchises which expire in 1939.

Into this ordinance, now under discussion, has been cunningly written a 50-year extension of these franchises. These franchise extension should never have been placed in the bridge-trade ordinance in the first place. It is wholly a separate matter. No one questions the right of the city to know what the railroads propose to do specifically in the interests of the city in exchange for the renewal of franchises of incalculable value to the railroads. Why say, then, that the railroads are "under no urgent necessity to do a thing?"

The Manufacturers' Railroad, in St. Louis, and the Alton & Southern, in East St. Louis, together with the city's river front railroad and the Municipal Bridge, provide a terminal system connecting with every trunk line coming into St. Louis. If the city refuses to renew the franchises for the Merchants' Elevated and Belt Line, a picture does not have to be drawn as to what will happen.

Among the final lines of the editorial we find this gem: "The sincere labor of the Citizens' Committee through six years will have failed." How absurd this statement, in the light of our present knowledge, that after months and almost years of enforced idleness on the part of the committee of the whole, the original drafts of the ordinance, written by C. E. Smith and Glendy Arnold, which did protect the city's interests, were discarded and thrown in the scrap heap and the present ordinance, written in secret and under the direction of Henry Miller, president of the Terminal Railroad Association, was substituted and brought to the front. Even this action was deferred until the Post-Dispatch demanded that the secret ordinance be given the light of publicity.

THE OFFICIAL DOPE.

Here is the official dope on that Pennsylvania primary, as breezily served by Mr. Vane's campaign manager, Mr. Mackey:

Pepper had the newspapers, the banks, the high-brows, the bootleggers, the porch climbers and the social climbers.

Pinchot had the earnest and liberal support of himself, his wife and every member of his family.

Vane got the votes.

OUR CARDINALS.

Those Cardinals of ours are acquitting themselves nobly in what Mr. Bryan used to call "the enemy's country." They walloped Philadelphia, massacred New York and, halted momentarily by Brooklyn, they returned to the attack with fresh fury. With what results? With these: The invincible Dazzy Vance was driven into obliquity and the Falstaffian Robinson submerged in tears.

The Cardinals are on their way. They are only a step or two behind the leaders. First place is just around the corner. All this while on the road. The fell tradition that has dogged so many St. Louis baseball teams, namely, that they could not win away from home, is smashed.

All diamonds look alike to the 1926 Cardinals. Every terrain is home sweet home. Every team is their tapoca. They are headed for the heights toward which St. Louis fandom has been gazing for almost half a century.

There is quite a stretch to be traveled, of course, before September sings her swan song and the schedule calls it a season. The faint of heart may hesitate to whisper that word pennant. Not we. We predict that the Cardinals will win the championship. We predict it here and now, while the predicting is good.

And here comes Secretary Mellon telling us that $10 a day for watchers is a fair wage. No wonder the sturdy yeomanry of the Keystone State call that big-hearted old scout Uncle Andy.

WOT A LIFE!

Attention, 100-per cent Americans! Here's another thing which will produce in you that emotion known as the hebe-jeebes. The Fascists have begun to undermine American institutions. Dr. Charles Fama of New York has been peering into the doings of Italians in America, and he finds what he thinks is proof that these perfidious dwellers on our soil have all privately sworn allegiance to Mussolini. He has taken his fears to the House Immigration and Naturalization Committee, whose chairman is giving them "serious consideration" with a view to a law refusing American citizenship to these persons. So all 100-per centers when they charily look under the bed each night to see if any emissaries of the Soviet have slipped in should also keep their eye peeled for these Mussolini-loving Fascists. Dear, dear! Life in the United States with all these secretive and dangerous foreigners is certainly becoming desperate.

One chap who tossed a $5000 white chip into that Pennsylvania jackpot says it was the biggest contribution he ever made to a campaign fund. His name is Mackrell—the poor fish.

THE STORM.

One moment we looked into a clear expanse of powder blue. Everything was lovely. Life seemed sweet with its long, green reflections. Then, suddenly, some giant with Great Caesarian thumb blotted out the Sunlight.

The calm sky frowned; enormous willows with Pagan-like bowings lashed terrifically. The wind then ushered in the rain. With respiratory gasps, and Uttered subservient to such power, it dashed with excited spirals across A curve of sapphire. We stood, hand in hand watching it through a curtain of smoke, Which, soft hanging, with rain-tattered edges.

Threw out flakes of gray, and we wondered What compound of genius conceived this Solemn bacchanic.

Suddenly a flash; then crashing down, Warming the black to lavender. The lightning came with diivian sound! You smiled through splashing tears. Your sweet face atone with resistless magic. You clung to me, kissing my hair, and I— Looked wide-eyed into the storm.

THEODORE TRILEY.

Sir: Pennsylvania is progressive. A few years ago it paid $25,000,000 for a $5,000,000 Statehouse. Now it pays $2,000,000 for a 30-cent Senator. It is no petty Western State. It buys what it wants.

BILL.

Sir: In his latest effort to "torment the editor," Abou Ben Adhem makes some very inane comparisons. Eating meat on Friday has so little in common with the drink question that the less said about it the better.

Let us try and come a little nearer the mark and consider the pistol-carrying habit. It is not as popular as the drink habit, yet they have many things in common. There is nothing immoral in carrying a gun, no more than there is in taking a drink; there is no harm or danger about a gun when in the possession of one who knows how to handle it, and the same may be said for drink. Despite these facts, there is a growing conviction in the public mind that the habit of carrying guns is inimical to the public welfare. For that reason various restrictions are being placed upon the use and sale of pistols, and the time is not far distant when their manufacture may be prohibited except under governmental surveillance, the same as alcoholic drinks are barred now.

The wets hardly know who to blame for this national iniquity, calamity or imbecility; these being some of their pet names for the dry act. Some blame Volstead, others the Antislavery League and others the dry crowd in general. Stuff and nonsense! The real culprit, the real cause of the Eighteenth Amendment was none other than old John Barleycorn himself.

But the public has a very short memory, for, after becoming so disgusted with John that they kicked him down the steps and into the street some six years ago, they are thinking of asking him in again. Not as a full-fledged guest, however, for they freely admit he has many undesirable qualities; but they think it might be safe to let him in the back door and then by keeping a close watch upon him, they may prevent him from becoming too obnoxious.

Go to it, you wets. Invite in this bolsterous brawler once more if you must; open wide your arms to welcome him if you wish, and try to hide his corruption under the cloak of respectability if you can. But when thoughts of the Eighteenth Amendment cause your gorge to rise until you often see red, do not fail to place the blame where it really belongs—upon the head of your bosom friend and outlaw, old John Barleycorn himself.

Ephraim Walker Jones, colored, had, by due process of law, been hanged by Florida. His funeral was being preached by Kentucky pastor who had known Ephraim since childhood.

"Brethren," said the preacher, "you all have come to pay your last respects to the deceased Brother Jones, where he Florida. This brother was a man of great faith and courage. He was bred and born in Kentucky. He grew to manhood; he later gravitated to Tennessee; then Alabama; then Georgia; and last to Florida, where he met, wed and killed his wife. This is the crime he has just paid for. Brethren and sisters, this deceased brother is now in hell and the only consolation I can offer the sorrowing relatives is that he went there gradually."

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reveal without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspapers and publicists on the questions of the day.

A NEW ERA FOR WESTERN BUREAU.

CHARLES MOREAU HARGREAVE, an American Review of Reviews for June 17, writes: "If you draw a line down the Mississippi River from its source to Arkansas, westward, taking in Oklahoma, and then northward along the Rockies, back to the source, you will have outlined approximately the territory which for two decades starting a country has been one of the public's most popular topics."

On the best corners of the map, in the best buildings in the village, about the only attractions of the nation have become not quite so numerous as "the race." In the 11 communities of the area, in 1920, were 11,000 of the banks and trust companies of the United States. . . . We have heard much of the corn-belt troubles because the product cannot be rushed from field to port, as is wheat, but requires more preparation before it can be sold. . . . Somewhat the same condition affects the sugar industry. A few more failures will follow, but mostly they will be smaller concerns whose communities are not made vigorous strides toward prosperity. . . . If legislation seems probable, strengthen the position by requiring a adequate capital, the term will be more firmly established. . . . By will be eliminated much of the interest rates for long-time deposits. . . . sound banking warrants. . . . profits led to chance-taking that had proved disastrous. . . . The improved condition of the prodigious country has led to liquidate much of the paper carried from five years ago; some notes have been charged off the books, gradually the fiscal structure of the rural communities being brought back to normal. Every bank is determined to restrain its expansion from hazardous borrowing, and to experience, to pursue a course of strict conservatism. With this basis, banking interests of the rural states are entering a new and sounder financial era.

SEQUEL TO CENTENNIAL AIR SERVICE.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

ONE of the most valuable by-products of the sequentennial is the establishment of an airplane between this city and Washington, with three powerful planes carrying a dozen passengers, and destined to make flight in an hour and a half. Government co-operates by granting use of its flying fields at both terminals. The Secretary observes, this is an important experiment. It points the way toward the fulfillment of comprehensive plans for preparing under Government auspices to connect the larger cities by airways, the broad expanse of our mainland, the immediate prospect of linking us thereto through the air, we have a need of such traffic routes than any other part of the world. . . . The western European now leading us in this line.

MICHEL GUSKOFF SIGNS WITH PHILADELPHIA

Former St. Louis Concertmaster Given Most Important Post of Kind in U. S.

The most important post of the kind in America, that of concertmaster of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, has been conferred upon Michel Guskoff, who resigned in April as concertmaster of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, a position he had occupied for nine years.

The Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, which is to give a concert here next February, is regarded as the leading symphonic orchestra of the country, and its director, Leopold Stokowski, ranks among the foremost conductors of the world.

It was stated when Guskoff resigned that he asked for increased pay and an extended contract, which the Symphony Society declined to meet. Two weeks later he had an audition before Mr. Stokowski, and was engaged on the spot. The announcement was made yesterday in Philadelphia. Guskoff succeeded Thaddeus Rich, who recently resigned after 10 years as concertmaster and seven years as assistant director of the Symphony Orchestra.

Differences With Gans. Both Director Gans and Guskoff stated that there had been some temperamental differences between them, but denied that the disagreement was of importance. "As artists will," said Guskoff, "we sometimes disagreed on minor matters."

Guskoff was born in New York on May 15, 1894, of a musical family. One of his ancestors, Michael Joseph Guskoff, figures in musical reference books as the inventor of an instrument which was a forerunner of the xylophone. The concertmaster's brother, Benjamin Guskoff, and his cousin, Isaac Guskoff, are members of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and his father was his first teacher on the violin.

Studied Under Kneisel. His principal instructor was the late Franz Kneisel, founder of the Kneisel Quartet. After service as concertmaster of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, Guskoff was chosen as concertmaster of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in 1917 by Max Zach.

He has appeared here annually as soloist at one of the orchestra's regular pairs of concerts, and was active in chamber music recitals. He has given recitals in New York and Chicago.

OPERA ENSEMBLE RECRUITS

FROM THE CITY INFIRMARY

Eight Elderly Members of "Chocolate Soldier" Cast Given Free Bus Rides Daily.

Probably no greater enjoyment is being had out of the performance of "The Chocolate Soldier" this week at the Municipal Theater, Forest Park, than that of eight St. Louisans, who, after ranging from 52 to 77, made their stage debut in the Strauss light opera.

In order to have the proper atmosphere for the opening of the second act when the victorious Bulgarian troops return home, Stage Director Charles Sinclair decided to augment the regular Municipal Opera ensemble with a number of children and a group of elderly folks who were the personal Bulgarian peasants. It was an easy task to obtain the children, since any number of them had been used in previous Municipal Opera productions, but the matter of enlisting services of the elders was a problem for some time. Finally Sinclair went to the City Infirmary, where volunteers were called for. More than 100 applied for the eight places.

Those selected, and their ages, are: Louis Schmidt, 71; Carl Spier, 74; Louis Miller, 69; John Post, 71; Amelia Hahn, 53; Pauline Reis, 55; Martha Schmidt, 77, and Anna Berry, 62. A Park Department bus is sent to the infirmary each evening to convey them to the Municipal Theater. They lose no time in donning their costumes, and then mingle with the other cast. When they finish with their work in the performance, they are taken for a bus ride through Forest Park and then are returned to the city institution.

BIRTHDAY PARTY SATURDAY

BY LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Those Who Have Become of Age Since Last Registration Are Invited.

A League of Women Voters birthday party, to which women who have reached the age of 21 since the last registration in St. Louis, have been invited, will be given at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Lewis, 4437 McPherson avenue.

Mrs. Lewis is chairman of the Get-Out-the-Vote Committee of the League. The party is a feature of the League's campaign to interest women in the duties of citizenship.

June 24, induce them to register for the primary election, Aug. 3. The invitations are not limited to members of the League, but all women who have just become of age are invited. Mrs. George Gellhorn will speak. The hostesses will be assisted by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Gellhorn. The League is a non-partisan organization.

PRIEST SUES GEORGE M. COHAN, ALLEGES PLAGIARISM OF PLAY

Father Frank M. O'Reilly Sues Producer of "The O'Brien Girl" From Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, June 17.—The Rev. Father M. O'Reilly of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Rosedale, L. I., a chaplain in the Second Division during the war, took the stand yesterday in his $500,000 suit against George M. Cohan, Otto Harbach and Frank Mandell, charging that "The O'Brien Girl," a musical comedy, was plagiarized from the priest's unproduced play, "Buzz Saw."

Cohan produced "The O'Brien Girl." Harbach composed the music and Mandell wrote the lyrics.

Father O'Reilly testified that he wrote "Buzz Saw" while in a hospital at Washington recovering from the effects of being gassed overseas. He said he submitted his play to Mrs. H. P. Harris, a producer, in January, 1920. She returned it and he sold it to A. E. Beaumont, a play broker, who sent it back unsold after a year. Then came the Cohan production.

The defendants claim their show was based on a story entitled "Give and Take."

ESTATE OF HENRY AMES IN EXCESS OF $400,000

DUPONT HEIRESS TO MARRY CLERK

Wedding Will Be Third of Rich Girls to Poor Men in That Family.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 17.—The engagement of Elizabeth Frances Dupont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Dupont of Fairmont, Pa., to Richard D. Morgan, a clerk in the offices of the Bell Telephone Co. in Philadelphia, is announced. Mr. Morgan is 21 years old and his fiancée 20.

The wedding, the culmination of a childhood friendship, will mark the third union of Dupont heiresses and comparatively poor men.

The former Alicia Dupont, daughter of Alfred I. Dupont, recently entered suit for divorce in Reno, Nev., from her husband, Harold Glendenning, a Rhodes scholar from Dartmouth College, and son of a Norwalk, Conn., mail carrier. Recently Miss Margaret L. Dupont, daughter of Irene Dupont, former president of E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co., married Crawford Hallcock Greenwalt of Philadelphia, who is a chemical engineer at the company's plant here.

That SATINY FRENCH SOAP FEELING

Here is the "Savon de Toilette"

you wanted for your personal use . . .

"I CAN'T afford to use French soap regularly when it costs 50c or $1.00 a cake. But oh, it's wonderful. Can't you make us a soap as marvellous as French soap?" women asked us again and again.

We have made it! Take Lux Toilet Form from its wrapper—here it is—the "savon de toilette" you asked for!

Made just "like French soap." Made by the very method France uses for her famed and finest toilet soaps. Quite different from the white soaps you are used to.

That satiny French soap feeling—you recognize it the moment Lux Toilet Form is in your hand. Satin-smooth, fine, firm—you know it will wear like imported soap. True "savon condensé."

Your smooth white fingers, pink tipped, delighted—they recognize the magic caress—

Lustrous, lovely hair after this gentle magic lather

ing lather that makes them feel as costly French soaps did. That exquisite feeling French soaps gave you—luxurious, cared for—you have it all the time now! Hard water on the Continent taught the French the secret that makes Lux Toilet Form too, lather gaily even in wickedly hard water.

Delicately fragrant with fragrance from the rare, expensive attars of a European perfume expert, Lux Toilet Form is the "savon parfume" you wish for your personal soap.

All the family may use it, rejoice in it—generous, marvellous Lux Toilet Form. In its old-time sampler wrapper it is at your druggist's, your department store and grocer's. Ten cent stores, too. Ask for Lux Toilet Form today. Ten cents. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

DECISION OPENS AFFAIRS OF FAILED BANKS TO PUBLIC

by the revelations which would ensue.

"We are unable to conceive of any reason why general knowledge of the affairs of a defunct bank discovered in a trial in court would injuriously affect the public morals, public health or public safety," he wrote. "Since no reason appears anywhere for depriving the courts of the power to produce evidence necessary in a litigated case, we think the Legislature in that part of the act which forbids production of the desired evidence, went beyond its constitutional authority."

He also held the act was unconstitutional because by specific exemption it permitted the Finance Commissioner to furnish any information in possession of his department concerning a bank to the Federal Reserve Board, Federal Reserve Bank, United States Comptroller of the Currency and bank clearing house associations in Missouri, but denied that information to others, either on personal request or by court process.

Holds There Was Discrimination. The Judge ruled this was a discrimination between creditors or debtors having business relations with a bank in the hands of the Commissioner and was contrary to the equal protection clause of the Federal constitution as well as any corporation or individual special or exclusive rights, privileges or immunity.

Referring to another contention that the law conflicted with a state constitutional provision guaranteeing the courts shall be open to every person, Judge White said: "The provision of the act which prevents the court in a civil case from procuring evidence in the conduct of the trial is an unwarranted interference with the functions of the court."

He declared such a statute would impair the power of the courts to enforce the rights of a litigant. Judge White declared the law was an attempt by the Legislature to say the courts shall not have or use certain evidence, however pertinent or necessary for proper determination of a case, and held it was "an unconstitutional encroachment upon the proper functions of the court."

All Judges concurred in the opinion by Judge White.

reticent and the losing candidate for Representative Vane's seat in Congress, of a story appearing in the Philadelphia Public Ledger that Representative Vane had offered him $150,000 to withdraw from the race. The Vane-Belmont candidate, James M. Hazlett, the present Recorder of Deeds in Philadelphia, won by an overwhelming majority.

The other witnesses at the night session were W. Heber Dithrich, chairman of the Pepper-Fisher Allegheny County Committee, and State Senator John J. Flynn (Dem.) of Ridgeway, Pa.

$45,000 in One District. O'Connor, the defeated congressional candidate in Representative Vane's home district, testified that he had not spent any of his own money in the campaign, but that the Pepper-Fisher people had supplied $45,000 for him and the rest of the ticket. He said that $20,000 had come from the Pepper committee, $23,175 from the Pepper-Fisher committee, and $2500 from William Roper, the Princeton coach, who was a Pepper worker.

Neumann Indorsed for Collector. The Twelfth Ward Regular Republican Club, of which S. D. Put the proper batter in to bat at once.

Bottomley batted in three runs. O'Farrell's pass. Thermon's single and an infield out gave the Cards a run in the second. Hornsbey broke a single through Bancroft in the third and scored on Bottomley's lead triple to right. A pass, a steal and Bottomley's single in the fourth gave the Cards their third run, and then Lefty McGrigg relieved the somewhat wild Bob Smith.

High error and hits by Douthitt and Bottomley in the ninth gave the Cards their fourth run.

In the fourth inning, Burrus and Brown singled and a throw into the Cards' dugout, combined with the hits, gave the Braves two runs.

Rhem's victory was his eleventh of the season against one defeat.

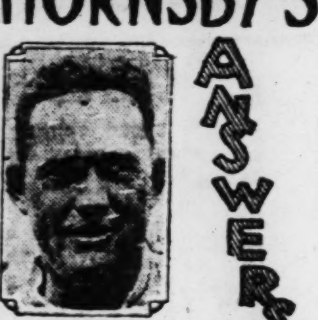

FIRST INNING. CARDINALS—High tossed out Blades. Douthitt singled to center. Hornsbey was safe when High fumbled his ball. Bottomley flied to J. Smith. Southworth walked, filling the bases. Bell flied to Brown. NO RUNS.

Bobby Jones, 138, Low Medalist In British Open; 13 Americans Qualify for Championship Play

Atlanta Boy Finishes 7 Strokes Ahead of Nearest Competitor, George Gadd of England—Hagen, With 143, Heads Central Section Players.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LONDON, June 17.—Thirteen of the 15 United States golfers entered, gained a right to play for the British open championship, starting next Wednesday, as a result of the qualifying rounds completed today. The two Americans who fell by the wayside were Joe Stein, young professional, and Silas Newton of the Lido Club, New York.

The 13 Americans, who qualified for play in the title tournament, were: Bobby Jones, George Von Elm, Bill Melhorn and Joe Kirk, Walter Hagen, Watta Gunn, Jim Barnes, Cyril Walker, Fred McLeod, Al Watrous, Tommy Armour, Emmet French and Roland MacKenzie in the central.

The two Americans who fell by the wayside, competed in the southern section, while all nine of the competitors in the central division came through in style.

James Low With 134. Bobby Jones, the United States amateur champion, led the field in the two days with a brilliant 134. Jones today scored a 68 to add to his record-breaking 66 of yesterday. In the central section Walter Hagen, the American professional champion, had the low card—143.

George Von Elm, American amateur champion, and Charles Johns tied for ninth with 145. Bill Melhorn, Chicago professional, and six others tied for eleventh with 150.

154 Is Qualifying Score. The only prominent Briton eliminated was B. R. Whitcombe. Harry Vardon, Ted Ray, Jim Braid, Sandy Herd and J. H. Taylor were well within the 154 mark, beyond which players failed to qualify.

Douglas Grant, an American resident of England, was nosed out with 155, while Silas Newton had 156, and Joe Stein, who went around in the rain today for an 84, had 161.

Scores up to and including 155 came within the qualifying limit in the central section. America's amateur champion and Jim Barnes, professional, 148, were sixth with four others; Cyril Walker, Fred McLeod, Al Watrous and Tommy Armour, professionals, 149, were twelfth with four others; Emmet French, professional, 153, was thirteenth with five others; and Roland MacKenzie, 155, was fourteenth with eight others.

Jose Jurado of Argentina, made a fine showing, landing third with 148.

The lowest scores among the British included: Tom Williamson of Nottingham 144, I. Barber of Cavendish 147, and W. Nolan of Port Marnock, W. H. Davies of Prenton and Fred Collins of North Wales, all 148.

Hagen Leads in Central. Walter Hagen, American professional, leads the field in the central section. He turned in a fine 71 today, after his 72 of yesterday, giving him the low aggregate of 143.

A large gallery attracted by Bobby Jones' flashing performance of the first round, followed him over the 18 holes today. His card was marred by only one five, that at the tenth hole where his tee shot found the heather. He took a two on the short third. His card: Out... 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 3—55. In... 5 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 3—68.

Crowds in Plug Huts. Crowds of golf enthusiasts snapped their fingers at the fashionable Ascot races, near Sunningdale, and came over in their gray plug hats and long-tailed coats to follow Bobby Jones.

The young amateur star rewarded the young with golf which approached yesterday's surpassing brilliance. He earned every stroke, playing with scientific perfection, with the exception of the short fourth where he took a four, instead of par three and the tenth, where he made his only five.

Von Elm Qualifies. George von Elm experienced a few nervous moments due to erratic putting and occasional visits to the traps, but he steadied and brought in a 74, as he did yesterday, giving him five or six strokes to spare for qualification.

His outward journey was uneventful, except for missing putts which cost him five on the first and second holes and a four on the short fourth. At the fourteenth he began putting better, and at the fifteenth he stuck a fine iron shot three feet from the pin and holed out for a two. His final visit to the bunkers guarding the eighteenth green cost him a five.

Sturdy Stella, a forward factor all the way, disposed of Broomer when ready and held Math safe in the final drive. Math, on the outside of the leader all the way, responded gamely when called up and finished strong. Broomer, all the way, saved ground but stopped under pressure. Crusade went well. Star Light was interfered with entering the elbow.

Here's proof that Mapacuba is a better cigar!

THIS TOBACCO IS UNDER-RIPE

THIS TOBACCO IS RIPE

THIS TOBACCO IS OVER-RIPE

WHEN we say proof, we mean just that—clear, definite, specific proof. You'll understand exactly what we mean the minute you study this picture of the tobacco plant.

You can see from this that there's only one kind of tobacco that means perfect smoking—those finely ripened, perfectly matured leaves from the middle of the plant. And they are the only leaves we use in Mapacuba!

This cigar can't have a bitter, raspy taste because we don't use the kind of tobacco which gives that taste! It can't be flat and tasteless because we don't use that kind of tobacco either.

Light up a Mapacuba today and see if it doesn't put a lot more joy in smoking. The ripe tobacco in it does make a difference in taste—in flavor—in everything that goes to make a fine cigar.

Johnny Brown's Manager Gave Boxing It's Initial "Uplift"

His "Millionaire Club" Introduced High Hat Atmosphere — Both Brown and Perfetti Appear Strong and Fit for Tomorrow's Bout.

When Kayo Johnny Brown, European bantam champion, steps into the ring tomorrow night at the St. Louis University Stadium to battle Lew Perfetti in the windup of four 10-round bouts on the Business Men's A. C. boxing card, the little British scrapper will be "seconded" by no less a personage than Charley Harvey, who has been recognized as one of America's foremost boxing authorities for more than 40 years.

Harvey first became identified with the glove game in 1889, when he took charge of the amateur boxing team of the Star A. C. in Long Island, then the chief rival of the New York A. C. Charley lured Jack McAuliffe, who in later years retired as lightweight champion of the world, and the original Jack Dempsey, the famous Nonpareil, to desert the North Side Club of Brooklyn and cast their lot with the Star A. C.

For more than 20 years Harvey was actively identified with the promotion of amateur boxing tournaments at Tammany Hall and the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. He has been a member of the board of governors of the Amateur Athletic Union and was responsible for the placing of boxing upon the Olympic games program.

Opened the "Millionaires' Club." When the Horton W. Legalized professional boxing in New York Harvey was connected at various times with such clubs as the Coney Island A. C., the Broadway A. C. and the Lenox. He introduced the first bouts conducted at the Palace A. C., owned by William A. Brady. He opened the old Pioneer A. C., known as the "Millionaires' Club," and gave boxing its first high-hat atmosphere. Here it was that heavy ringposts and red velvet covered ropes were introduced.

Harvey later managed several good American fighters, including Mysterious Billy Smith, Martin Flaherty, Percy McIntyre and Johnny Gorman. His connection with English boxers was established in 1905, when he took the moving pictures of the Nelson-Britt bout to London. Since that

The European titleholder has been ordered by Harvey to confine his training work to shadow boxing and light calisthenics this afternoon to conclude his preparatory grind. Brown fought a strenuous 10-rounder with Jackie Johnson at Toronto last Friday and Harvey fears that a heavy training session at this time might impair his speed and stamina and take the edge off his condition for the battle tomorrow night.

Perfetti gave an interesting demonstration of his speed, skill and cleverness with the gloves when he worked out with Morris King at the National yesterday afternoon.

CARNIVAL SHOWS ARE STOPPED BY ILLINOIS BOXING COMMISSION

By the Associated Press.
URBANA, Ill., June 17.—The Illinois Athletic Commission took action yesterday to stop two carnival athletic shows in this territory, which were announced by Commissioner Paul Freha, which have been violating the State law by operating without a license.

One show was closed at Fairview and another, appearing in Danville, was ordered stopped by Sheriff Timm of Vermillion County. The commission has learned that carnival shows in the southern part of the State and will, it is said, notify authorities to close them.

Star Distance Runners Meet In Dog Feature

Lady Dinnell Likely to Rule Favorite—World Record Established.

Racing Secretary H. L. Ewen of the Madison Kennel Club did a good job of grouping when he arranged tonight's program of greyhound races. The handicap figures in every event are so close that the knack of picking probable winners becomes an arduous task, leaving the wisecracks at wide variance.

In the distance event—the feature contest at five-sixteenths of a mile—there are Lady Dinnell, Acting Buddy, Lost Honor, Trey Ross, Tecumseh Mac and Leo Green. Each of these dogs is in top form right now and the finish is likely to find them nodding noses for the verdict. Lady Dinnell, with three smashing victories to her credit in three starts, is a favorite with the public and will carry most of its money, but she will have to step every inch of the way to trim such a pack.

Proud Athlete and Little John, puppies which recently won their first races, will match leaps in the second race at a quarter of a mile. They are in with some of the older dogs which will take advantage of any mistake they may make.

Running Fox ran a beautiful five-sixteenths to take the fifth race last night. By beating Red Concern, the heavily played favorite, he earned $13.40 on a $2 investment. Coming off the turn the fastest of all, he cut over to the rail and ran neck and neck with The Mystery nearly all the way. He had just enough in reserve to draw away in the last 10 yards.

The world record for the quarter-mile hurdles was lowered to 28 2-5 seconds when Cimarron Pat triumphed in the last race last night. He paid $13.20 for $2.

SAYS EVOLUTIONISTS GAMBLE IN FUTURES

Speaker at Lutheran Convention Continues Doctrinal Essay, Comments on Science.

Delegates to the triennial convention of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and Other States, will see motion pictures tonight of the dedication last Sunday of the new $3,000,000 Concordia Seminary in Clayton. They had mingled in the great crowd that gathered for the occasion. The film will be exhibited at Emmaus Auditorium, 2617 Shenandoah avenue.

An eight-reel picture, "Martin Luther: His Life and Time," also will be shown. It deals with conditions surrounding Luther's reformation, 400 years ago; his post-mortem of the famous 95 theses, and his trial at Worms.

The convention, meeting at Holy Cross Church, Ohio avenue and Miami street, agreed yesterday to release Prof. G. Meizer to the Lutheran seminary at Zehlendorf, Germany, as European representative of the synod. He has been on the faculty of Concordia Seminary here for 23 years.

Assails Evolution. Continuing his doctrinal essay on "The Pursuit of Sciences Which God Approves" before the convention yesterday, the Rev. W. H. T. Dau, president-elect of Valparaiso University, aimed a shaft at evolution, inferentially.

"Much science," he asserted, "is not science. Much is called science which is not actually known, but which men would like to know and some day to prove. It is dealing in futures and selling on a margin, or just plain intellectual gambling. Real scientists do not do this, just as safe bankers do not play the ponies or deal in the curb stock market."

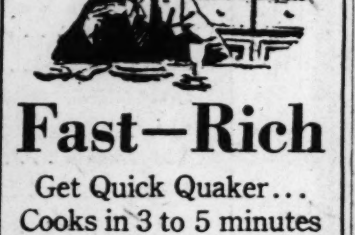

"If you say that the universe is governed by laws you will likely be able to explain many things that happen by means of your laws, but the laws themselves you have never seen or observed. They are inferences of your own, abstracted by your mind from what you have seen."

Indian Mound Relics. In honest science there is nothing that should upset a Christian's faith in Holy Scriptures. Science is learning more and more about this world that God gave over to man to subdue, that is, to make it serve their interests.

Recalling that he had read that Indian mounds in America, were built thousands of years ago, before the Biblical time for the creation of the world, Dr. Dau referred to the statement of a young ethnologist connected with the Smithsonian Institution, that many European objects had been found in the mounds, "to blast one more piece of mythology." "That is," he went on, "as to the age of Monk's Mound, across the Mississippi River from St. Louis."

The convention adopted a resolution of thanks to Dr. Dau for his long service on the faculty of Concordia Seminary and as editor of the Theological Monthly.

Honor for Miss Gellhorn. Miss Martha Ellis Gellhorn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Gellhorn of 4366 McPherson avenue, was given honorable mention in the announcement of matriculation scholarship awards by Bryn Mawr College yesterday Miss Gellhorn was prepared by the John Burroughs School. Her mother was graduated from Bryn Mawr in the class of 1909.

GRASS TEST MADE ON FOREST PARK LINKS

Washington Bent the Variety That Seems to Grow Best in St. Louis.

Forest Park golf should come out of the doldrums next spring. Park Superintendent Strehle said today, for five of the greens which have been causing discontent among the players are to be sown with Washington bent, the grass which Shaw's Garden, after years of experiment, has pronounced best for St. Louis.

Four greens on the 18-hole course already have been tried with that strain of bent, but two were failures. "We had an Eastern man to advise us," Strehle explained. "He said to let the weeds and crab grass grow—that the acid preparation of the soil for creeping bent and the rapid spread of the grass itself would choke them out. But he did not know St. Louis conditions. We have a crab grass that would choke out anything, and it did choke out the bent."

"When we put in No. 3 and No. 11 with the bent grass late last fall, we consulted with George Pring at Shaw's Garden, and kept a man there constantly to keep out the weeds and crab grass. Those two are in fine condition, and we will assign a man to weed each of the five selected for Washington bent this fall. They will be ready for spring when the course opens next spring. Other greens, which are in red-top and bluegrass, are improving since the recent rains, but we plan, nevertheless, to go onto them with the Washington bent, sowing No. 1 and No. 7, and possibly No. 8, next year."

Forest Park golfers have been wrought up about the condition of the course since at least six years ago. About then the initial freshness of the most picturesque course in the country wore off and in 1920 it was suggested that grass greens be abandoned altogether in favor of sand greens.

Fees Bring No Improvement. Golfers accepted the fee proposition, from which about $10,000 was realized last year, only in the hope of improvement of playing conditions. But this year the 18-hole course was in wretched shape. Park Commissioner Pape replied to somewhat warm protests that grass would not grow without vast cost, anyway, many players could not expect for $10 a year what private club golfers got for $500 a year.

George H. Pring, who is horticulturist for Shaw's Garden and has conducted its experiments with grasses, has expressed willingness to aid further in the improvement of the Forest Park course. He relates that in a Pullman conversation with the president of the Louisville Golf Club he remarked that although an importation like Washington bent was necessary for St. Louis, he supposed Kentucky golfers would do splendidly with fine native grass.

"Oh, no," replied the Kentuckyan, "we wouldn't think of trying to maintain putting greens in bluegrass. Ours are all Washington bent."

The grass, which was developed by the United States Department of Agriculture in experiments which eliminated 200 other varieties, may soon be seen at its best about the entrance plaza of Shaw's Garden, where its deep lush green, when other grasses are brown, is showing rusty patches, makes a striking background for the stone buildings, sparkling pools and bright lilies.

Successful at Shaw's Garden.

It was planted there last fall from the stolons, or inch-long bits of stem, each with a joint from which roots spring. On the south end of the Palm House terrace may be seen a test whereby it appears a full stand may be obtained in a month from planting. Plugs of the grass were set in the ground there, about five to the square foot. Two weeks after planting the ground is nearly covered. Two months, Pring estimated, with putting-green care, would have the stand in putting-green condition.

This grass is receiving anything but putting-green care, for the garden, in testing it for St. Louis lawns, subjects it to the care of the average lawn—watering only. Even so, it is in perfect condition, along two of the pools, smooth and springy as a heavy carpet.

Back in the experimental garden are sections of Rhode Island, Narragansett and other creeping bent, one so new that it is known only by Government number, and others are being tried at the garden's Gray Summit extension. None so far has outshone the Washington strain. From them all Pring is planning to choose a St. Louis strain, by selecting the brightest and lushest spots, which show adaptability to the St. Louis climate.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LARIMORE

The funeral of Mrs. Simpson Larimore, widow of William T. Larimore, pioneer St. Louis grain merchant, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Bush, 6336 Forsythe boulevard, Monday morning, will be held tomorrow morning from Mrs. Bush's residence. Interment will be in Bellefontaine cemetery.

Mrs. Larimore was 63 years old. She was born in Baton Rouge, La. Since her marriage there in 1874 she had resided in St. Louis. In addition to Mrs. Bush, she was survived by another daughter, Mrs. E. J. McCurdy of Mineral Wells, Tex., and a son, Newport Larimore of San Francisco, Cal.

KANSAS CITY RAILWAYS CO. RECEIVERSHIP COSTS $523,000

Additional Fees Allowed by Judge Approving Transfer of System to Private Control.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. KANSAS CITY, June 17.—Judicial approval of the transfer of the Kansas City Railways Company to private hands was given by Judge Kimbrough Stone of the Federal court yesterday. An appeal from the approval was filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals by Blatchford Downing, attorney for the second mortgage bondholders.

The part of Judge Stone's decision which attracted greatest interest was his disposition of the flood of claims presented, among them the granting of additional compensation to Francis M. Wilson and Fred W. Fleming, receivers, and James E. Goodrich, chief counsel for the receivers. To each of the receivers an additional $71,000 was allowed, making the total compensation $180,000 to each. Judge Stone praised the receivers and explained that the ordinary measuring stick of business could not be applied to their services.

Major work must be done in the way of formal procedure before the company will become the actual possession of its new owners, and until that time, not earlier than Sept. 15, the receivers will continue their management.

FOUR MEN IN STOLEN AUTO WRECK IT, THEN TAKE ANOTHER

Marmon Abandoned After Crash and Citizens Is Forced to Turn Over His Moon Car to Thieves.

Four men in a stolen Marmon automobile crashed into the car of John Gill, 6314 Roseberry avenue, at North Market street and Vandeventer avenue at 7 o'clock last night. They wrecked Gill's car and drove on to 4449 St. Ferdinand avenue, where they abandoned the damaged Marmon.

The four then walked to 4700 St. Ferdinand avenue where they got into the Moon touring car of Paul French, 911 North Euclid avenue. They forced French to drive them to Euclid avenue and hid him in a nearby building. They then drove on to 4449 St. Ferdinand avenue, where they abandoned the damaged Marmon.

The Marmon had been stolen from Gwynn Evans of 10 Hortense place, and the license plates on it from Roy Jeannelle of 4715 Newcomb place.

ACCUSES VAUDEVILLE 'TRUST'

Booking Agent Files Action Against Keith and Orpheum Circuits.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The United States Supreme Court has been asked by Max Hart of New York City to decide whether the B. F. Keith Vaudeville Exchange, the Orpheum Circuit, the Excelsior Collection Agency, Edward F. Albee, and others are engaged in a restraint of interstate commerce and are violating the Sherman antitrust law in the booking of vaudeville acts.

Hart contends that the control which the Keith and Orpheum interests exercise constitutes a monopoly and has driven him out of the business as a booking agent.

CALLS MUSSOLINI PICKPOCKET

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 17.—Premier Count Bethlen was greatly embarrassed in the National Assembly yesterday when, in the presence of foreign diplomats, the opposition Deputy-Geza Malacich called Mussolini a pickpocket.

Government members of the Assembly quickly rose to the occasion with cheers for St. Louis Premier. Nevertheless Italy is expected to make diplomatic representations.

WOMAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Wife of Illinoisan Was Feeding Chickens; Store Burned.

MCINT VERNON, Ill., June 17.—A woman was killed and a store was burned in a violent electrical storm in western Wayne County early today.

Mrs. Ed Davis, residing on a farm south of Keenes, was struck by lightning and killed when she went to feed her chickens. The general store of Jones & Allen at Wayne City was struck by lightning and burned, with loss estimated at $15,000.

WIND RAZES TOWN IN INDIA

Heavy Casualties Feared in Storm at Dhandhuka.

LONDON, June 17.—A Daily Mail dispatch from Karachi, British India, says that a great storm has reduced the town of Dhandhuka, near Ahmadabad, Bombay, to a heap of ruins. Not a building within a mile of the town escaped, and heavy casualties are feared.

Two children were carried 100 yards by the wind. The roofs of houses were whirled about like feathers and railroad cars were blown along the tracks for miles.

GIRL WHIPPED, SHOTS FATHER

Pikeville (Ky.) Police Arrest Besieged Charles, 18 Years Old.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., June 17.—A whipping given her by her father, who objected to her going on automobile rides with men at night, caused Beale Charles, 18 years old, to shoot and seriously wound her father, John ("Chad") Charles, according to police who arrested her yesterday after she had fled to the hills.

DELINQUENT AND DESIGNER MURDERED

NEW YORK, June 17.—Combining of two women's magazines, the Delinquent and the Designer, in one publication, to be known as Delinquent, effective with the November issue, is announced by S. R. Latshaw, president of the Butterick Publishing Co.

EX-BOOTLEGGER DUCKS CROSS-EXAMINATION

William C. Davidson Disappears From House Committee Room After Telling Story.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—William C. Davidson's "inside story" before the House Alcoholic Liquor Traffic Committee about bank transactions with bootleggers apparently is not to be continued.

Styling himself an ex-bootlegger "going straight," he told the committee most, if not all, of his story yesterday and last night, naming a number of banks in the Far West and various Federal enforcement officials. Then the committee, voting 4 to 3, decided that James J. Britt, counsel for the prohibition unit, might cross-examine him.

Britt arose. So did Davidson. "I refuse to answer your questions," the ex-bootlegger announced. "I don't know what you are brother. I've had a Santa Claus pulled on me too many times."

THIRD MAN IS SENTENCED FOR $4180 BANK ROBBERY

Negro, One of Seven Men in Chesterfield Holdup, Pleaded Guilty; Three Still at Large.

Robert Hill, a Negro, the fourth of a band of seven men arrested for robbing the Bank of Chesterfield, Chesterfield, Mo., of $4180 Nov. 12, 1924, pleaded guilty before Judge McElhinney of Clayton today and was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary.

Edward Williams, a Negro, was previously sentenced to 12 years, and Thomas Dickens, who stood trial, was given 15 years, for their part in the robbery. Richard Kneist, another of the band, pleaded guilty on April 19 but has not been sentenced. His brother, Anthony Kneist, and two other men, who were implicated, have not been arrested.

DECLINE IN EMPLOYMENT Labor Report Shows Fewer Men at Work in Factories.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Wholesale commodity prices increased slightly during May, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today, while employment in manufacturing industries decreased 1.2 per cent and payrolls declined 1.6 per cent. The May employment figures, however, were 9.9 per cent and 1.3 per cent greater, respectively, than those for the same month last year. Textile, vehicle and metal industries showed the greatest employment decline, while such industries as brick, cement and ice cream showed their usual spring gains. Sharp drops also were shown in the furniture trade.

The bureau's weighted index of commodity prices, embracing items registering 151.7 for May, compared with 151.1 for April and 153.2 for May, last year. Farm products were shown to have averaged slightly lower in May than in April, due to decreases in prices of grains, sheep, cotton, potatoes and wool. Clothing and building materials, metals and housefurnishing goods also were cheaper, but all other groups showed increases, ranging from one-third of 1 per cent in foods and chemicals to 2 1/2 per cent in fuels. Increases were shown in 84 instances and decreases in 152.

CHILD HURT IN 20-FOOT FALL

Escapes With Broken Elbow in Striking Brick-Paved Yard.

A fractured right elbow was the only injury city hospital physicians were able to find, in examining Clede Laderdure, 3 years old, who fell 20 feet to a brick-paved yard from a window in her home, 2305A North Eleventh street, yesterday, when playing in the kitchen where mother, Mrs. Almira Laderdure, was ironing.

RAIL FREIGHT CAR RUNS WILD

Breaks From Wabash Handicars and Hits Caboose 1 1/2 Miles Away.

A freight car which broke away from handcars in the yard of the Wabash Railroad at Edwardsville, yesterday, ran a mile and a half and crashed into the caboose of a northbound freight at Edwardsville Junction. The crew in the caboose saw the car approaching and jumped. No. 11, the "Banner Blue" six-hour passenger train from Chicago to St. Louis, traveling on the southbound side of the double tracks, reached the spot at a speed of a mile a minute four minutes after the crash. The other freight car had not been affected.

YACHT CAPTAIN HELD IN BOND BECAUSE OF LIQUOR ON CRAFT

Defense Declares Supply Was Sealed in Cabin of Seized Vessel by Porto Ricans.

NORFOLK, Va., June 17.—Capt. Benjamin Jarvis of the yacht "Laurentian" has been held in $1000 bond for the November term of Federal court by a United States Commissioner, following seizure of the craft Monday with several cases of liquor aboard. The yacht, said to be owned by Russell A. Alger, Detroit lumber man, and leased to C. K. G. Billings, who was making a cruise with a party of guests, was seized by a Coast Guard cutter off Yorktown after it sailed from Billings' estate at Curtis Neck.

At the hearing Boatwain M. B. Jester of the cutter related that he found the liquor in a compartment sealed by a board nailed by J. M. Taylor, New York attorney for the yacht's owner, declared the liquor had been sealed by Porto Rican officials when the ship sailed from there recently. Other defense testimony was that the liquor had been aboard the yacht for some time.

Both are well known along the Meramec River. Potthoff, head of a printing concern, has directed education of swimmers and protection of the uneducated ones for some years. He was 1926 football captain at Washington University, and Missouri Valley fullback for two years. Miss Hose, a teacher in the public schools, won the municipal high diving championship in 1918 and has represented St. Louis in intercity swimming events.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 17.—Recruiting of the tenth Briand cabinet proceeded today, but not without some hitches. Former Premier Poincare, member of the Right, and Herriot, radical leader, are expected to give Briand their final replies tonight on his request that they participate. Unless Briand is willing to exclude Louis Marin, leader of the old National bloc, Herriot's acceptance is most doubtful.

It is understood that Poincare is willing to accept the finance ministry, but wants it understood that the government will have full powers to deal with the financial situation so that measures decided upon shall not be continually compromised by interference in Parliament.

In light of his conferences with Herriot today, one passage in a statement made by the premier yesterday assumes new significance. Briand now hints in the statement that he would like a national union impossible because

JAM AND JELLY MAKING MADE EASY AND SURE

Today it is no more necessary for you to make your jams and jellies by the old, long-boil method than it is for you to light your house with candles or spend the morning washing lamp chimneys.

The reason for the old-fashioned method of "boiling" jam and jelly was that no fruit contains enough jelling substance to justify all of its juice. Therefore a large amount of juice had to be boiled away.

But now with Certo (the jelling substance of fruit refined and bottled) you can use any fruit you like and you can make your jam or jelly before-boil it only one or two minutes, and get a perfect tender "set."

This short boil with Certo saves all of your fruit and juice—its fresh flavor—its bright color—its bulk. You get half again more jam or jelly. It takes less time to make it and it tastes better, looks better and cannot fail to jell.

A recipe book comes with each bottle of Certo. Your grocer carries Certo, or you can send 10¢ (for postage) and get a trial half-size bottle. It makes jam or jelly, depending upon the recipe used. Address Douglas-Peetin Corporation, 4639 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y.

Thousands of people are happy to-day.

Happy because they heard of Ocean-O, the natural blood treatment for obstinate skin blemishes. Using it as directed caused ugly and embarrassing skin eruptions to vanish, leaving a clear, healthy skin.

Skin diseases, except those of a contagious nature, are all caused by bad blood, or at least by blood that is not balanced minerally.

You can supply your blood with just the alkaline minerals that it lacks by taking a teaspoonful of Ocean-O (highly concentrated deep sea water with the excess common salt removed) in a glass of water morning and night.

This is because deep sea water contains the same natural vitalizing minerals as pure, healthy blood.

Because Ocean-O contains just the right proportion of iodine and the right kind of iodine it is helping a host of people to reduce and check fat.

Ask Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Walgreen Drug Co., or any retail drug store for a bottle of Ocean-O today. Use one bottle as directed and if not satisfied get your money back.

The Church and the State

The Lutheran Church teaches and believes that the Church and the State are two distinct and separate entities, each with its own proper sphere of activity. The Church is to be a spiritual body, not a political one. It is to be a body of believers, not a body of citizens. It is to be a body of service, not a body of power.

The State is to be a temporal body, not a spiritual one. It is to be a body of citizens, not a body of believers. It is to be a body of power, not a body of service.

The State should not dictate to the Church, nor should the Church dictate to the State. Each should be free to do its own work in its own way.

The State should protect the Church from outside interference, but it should not interfere with the Church's internal affairs. The Church should protect the State from internal decay, but it should not interfere with the State's external affairs.

The State should support the Church, but it should not control it. The Church should support the State, but it should not control it.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

R. S. O.—Jan. 27, 1925, fell on Monday.

A. Z.—There has been no recent changes in the capitals of the states of the United States.

PANSY—Inquire of the shop where you purchased the raincoat for the information.

CITIZEN—The aim and object of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce is to promote the interest of the city.

A POST-DISPATCH READER—Inquire of the song shops here regarding publishers of the various songs in question.

W. James J. Reed, United States Senator, was born near Mansfield, O. Nov. 4, 1861. Address him, Washburn Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

JEAN—Inquire of the art department of any of the department stores or the art shops here regarding the clay for polychroming.

A POST-DISPATCH READER—The authors of the songs in question are perhaps the only persons who could say what their songs are based on.

ELITE—We do not know of any free boarding school in Chicago for children of widows who cannot afford to care for them otherwise.

A SUBSCRIBER—Inquire of the Information Desk at the Public Library and the librarian there will help in the selection of books you need.

BIRD FANCIER—Inquire of one of the various pet shops listed in the telephone and city directories regarding the proper food for the South American bird.

THEO—Inquire of one of the various second-hand book shops regarding the sale of the books, and a curio shop regarding the sale of the antique dishes.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

F. G. M.—If the facts as you state you will have a good defense. Consult a lawyer and ask him to defend the suit for you.

DAILY READER—Get a certificate of title from a reliable title company, to determine whether the deed of trust on the property is a first lien.

GLENN CARBON—The note in question is binding only on the party who signed it. If you signed it, it is valid against you, even though your wife did not sign it.

E. R.—You are not allowed to make home-brew containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol, even though it is for your own use.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

E. M. D.—The one and only way to determine whether the trouble with the feet is due to diabetes, as you have been told, is to have the urine examined. This will be done free of charge by the city chemist in the Municipal Courts Building, if you so desire to go there. If the trouble is not due to some systemic disorder and is purely local, the following should be beneficial: Bala, saphthol, 1 drachm; distilled witch hazel, 8 ounces. Mix and bathe the feet in this solution night and morning.

A plea that intemperance in strong cigars had made him dizzy failed to save John Booksh, 53 years old, a carpenter, of 2660A Shennadoh avenue, from punishment yesterday for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

After hearing his testimony and that of policemen who said he had been drunk, Police Judge Rosenbaum sentenced Booksh to 50 days in the workhouse and ordered him

CAN'T CENSOR FIGHT FILMS, SAYS NEW YORK STATE RULING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, June 17.—Attorney-General Ottinger has ruled that the State Motion Picture Commission has no authority to censor the Berlinbach-Stirling fight pictures or any other pictures of boxing bouts.

The ruling cites an amendment to the censorship law, specifically exempting news reels from censorship.

Common sense, the Attorney-General adds, indicates movies of boxing bouts must be classed as "current events or pictorial news."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"Pretty fine stuff, that," Caleb demanded of Malcolm, who stooped to examine the texture of the flax. "That'll mean a new house in the spring, if it keeps on the way it's going. Got to build, you know, Malcolm. The girls—they deserve a decent home. Ellen's gettin' old enough now to have a house and the like, and they'll be comin' round—young fellows with farms of their own, like as not. I want to show 'em the girls come from as good stuff as they're got. To have to build—have to build. The girls've got to have something good to catch something good, see? Heh, heh. No slouchin' round in mean homesteads for them—you ought to hear 'em talk. Ah—no, indeed!"

Malcolm was silent. His eyes roved admiringly over the rich flax and around northward to the acres of luxuriant tame hay and rye grass. Caleb Gare was a prosperous man. A mean man, he knew, but his children would live after him—his children would be established in comfort for the rest of their lives on this land—and he, Malcolm, was a wanderer, hearing over a call in the wind, a summons to far lakes and lonely forests.

They went back by way of the dried lake bottom, skirted the edge of the swamps, and crossed the hay field that lay farthest south. Malcolm brushed his fingers through the long silky hay, breathed deep of its rich, sweet smell that rose in the air. It was good, the hay, good to lie down in under the stars.

"Yes—yes, no way out of it—have to build—Ellen and Martin both want a house to live in—save on other things, maybe."

Caleb spoke almost to himself, it seemed. But beside him, Malcolm, who was simple as a tree, and wise only as a tree in wisdom in directness and free living, heard every word he said.

At supper that evening Caleb confined the conversation to himself and Malcolm; talked with him about the condition of the crops around Oland and asked him what the prospects were farther south; discussed the epidemic of foot and mouth disease that had broken out among the cattle in the west, and observed that this ought to mean a rise in the price of beef; told him of his plan to raise turkeys and geese next year; occupied many minutes with the details of a story of a trade in horses, in which he had not badly lost a while.

"Yes—yes," Caleb chuckled. "We all got fooled some time or other, eh, Malcolm? All got fooled some time! Heh, heh!"

There seemed to be some special significance in his laughter.

"By the way," he continued after a moment. "There's a bit of building goin' on at Yellow Post, ain't there? Talk with any of 'em down there on the way up? Somebody was askin' about you just the other day—John Tobacco's daughter, if I'm not mistaken. Fine girl, for an Indian. Been goin' to school over in the mission. Goin' to teach at Yellow Post soon's they get the school built. Old John was tellin' me."

"I didn't stop but a few minutes there," said Malcolm, glancing across at Ellen. "Come right through from Shell Lake."

"Didn't, eh? Well—you sort of lose interest in your old friends when you've been away a while. I know how it goes. I know how it goes," Caleb mused.

Ellen kept her eyes on her plate. Her cheeks were warm. She struggled against the shame that rose in her heart toward Caleb's unfairness—tried to tell herself that it was a just advantage that he took, that Malcolm was, after all, of mixed blood and should be shown his place. That he was all she had ever known of romance did not matter.

Judith watched Caleb and her lips curled. Not for long—not for long would she stand the spectacle of his tyranny. Only until after the hay.

Amelia, in her place, sat still, unflinching. If this was to be Ellen's part of the cost, let her pay it. She was a child of Caleb Gare. Amelia had determined to isolate herself wholly from Caleb's children, so that she might not weaken in her resolve. She would be as hard with them as he had been, lest they dare break free from freedom and so bring ruin on Mark Jordan. With this thought she looked at Ellen's lowered face as if she were a stranger to her.

It happened that Skull Erickson drove in at the Gare's just after dusk and sought conference with Caleb in regard to the new shingles for the school house roof. Where Ellen was sitting she saw him drive up, and her heart stopped for a moment. He would take Caleb's attention away from Malcolm for a while. Ellen got up and moved her stool to a cow that stood in a corner between two sheds in the rear yard, out of sight of Judith and Charlie, who were milking farther down the yard.

Presently Malcolm came, from behind the shed as he used to do, in a roundabout way so that the others should not see him.

"Ellen," he muttered, standing erect close beside her. "I'm not goin' to coax you away from all you've got. But if you'll come with me, I want you. I'm not much, but I'll be good to you. I used to think you liked me."

Ellen glanced aside and saw the strong legs encased in their old leather leggings. She wanted suddenly to throw her arms about them, and hold on tight, tight to the legs and hands, and look up at him and say, yes, she would go with him. But she did none of these things. She went on milking, the white stream entering the pail with a thin, purring sound, the warm smell of the milk coming up into her face.

"I'd buy a horse for you—we'd go slow, and sleep out nights all summer under the stars, Ellen, and in my sick tent when it rains. I've got an old cabin up north—make lots of money on a fur—your wouldn't be needin' for nothin'."

Purview he touched her soft brown hair, the thing he had remembered as lovely about Ellen.

The touch thrilled her unbearably. Her back straightened, her hands dropped before her. Her heart beat like a gong sounding a brief hour. Why didn't he snatch her up and carry her bodily away before she had time to make up her mind? But he wouldn't—things didn't happen that way, for her.

"I can't, Malcolm. I can't leave them," she said tonelessly.

He was silent for a while.

"Well—you don't want to go, then. No use my stayin' round. I'll be gettin' out tonight, for Bjarnasson's. When I'm through with the boat over there—I'll be thinkin' of you all the time, Ellen. After that—the trail north."

Ellen's body was a great tight knot. She could neither move nor speak, but sat staring at the still heavy udder of the cow.

"So long, then, Ellen girl, and good luck," Malcolm said, putting out his hand. She placed her own in it nervously, without looking up into his face. His eyes above her were dark and sad, with the despair of humility, since he thought it was because he was unworthy that she would not go with him. But she did not see his eyes. He vaulted easily over the board fence of the milk yard and was gone.

Ellen sat and stared at the downy udder of the cow, a rich and unfailing supply of nourishment for the human body, that would go on living in spite of pain and grief.

The evening Malcolm, the Scotch half-breed, as he was incorrectly called, took leave of the Gare's, thanking them for their hospitality. Ellen was present, only one of the Gare's now.

"I get myself a wife for that trip, Malcolm," Caleb grinned, nudging Skull Erickson in the ribs. "The Bible says it is not good for man to live alone."

On his Indian pony, Malcolm, whom Jude called "Goat-eyes," rode off, a great, powerful, broad-brimmed hat that was full of mockery. Ellen's heart contracted, for she saw that he did not understand.

The hay and the rye grass ripened into great wide curves under sun. Martin overhauled the hay racks and killed the mower. Judith prayed that it would not rain and so delay the cutting. Caleb went about rubbing his hands together with pleasure at the beauty of his land. The days went on long and Ellen wondered how long it took to build a boat.

The price of beef went up two cents, and Caleb sent Ellen and Martin to the Siding with another lot of cattle.

They left at the sound of the first bird, to escape the bare heat of the day upon the prairie. Ellen rode until sunrise half asleep in her saddle, wishing that Judith were more trustworthy so that Caleb would occasionally send her instead. She heard Martin's voice and the snap of his long whip, and the sound of the cattle brushing one another's flanks. Catbirds and jays darted to and fro across the trail, and every feathered throat in the bush was awake and singing. But Ellen found herself in a heavy world, outside of song.

They went along the northeast shore of Bjarnasson's lake, but from that point they could not see the farm, which was hidden by a long stand of spruce. Ellen did not glance back southward, lest Martin should see her do so. Out on the middle of the lake they could see two boats and a flat-bottomed scow.

"Guess Bjarnasson's druggin' the lake again," Martin whispered.

Ellen made no comment. But she thought what a restful place the lake would be. It was glassy and lay in white and blue patches in the clear light. There would be no sound under its surface, only a lullulent, gloomy peace.

They returned home in the evening, as usual, when the frogs were croaking for miles and miles in the swamps on the north. The frogs would croak at the stars, no matter who came or went.

Then, one blistering hot day, Caleb's prize sow gave birth to a litter of 13 and unaccountably died. Caleb was at Yellow Post when the tragedy occurred, and the family held their breath like one man while they waited for his return.

Caleb's face was a study when he saw the dead sow, a poor bloated thing lying in the small new pen. Martin had divided the suck-

N Australian farmer wrote a letter to the Mayor of Bristol, England, the other day. He told him that he wished he knew where he could find a wife who "isn't foolish about anything."

Dear me, I'd hate to take that contract, wouldn't you?

Now, there's you—you're awfully wise and sensible and practical and high principled, but for goodness' sake how foolish you may be about letters. You'll write a letter and let it lie on your desk for a week and then wonder why you haven't had an answer.

There's Kate—she's the cleverest girl in the world and as brave as a lion, but she'll scream like a Comanche at the mere sight of a harmless mouse.

There's Julia, she spends money like water, who's so generous and so open hearted and so lavish as Julia—and yet, Julia will scheme and plot and plan to get somebody else to pay her street car fare.

"Not foolish about anything" and how he would hate her, if he ever got her—such a woman as that.

Why, she wouldn't be a woman at all; she'd be an automaton. The perfect woman—oh, yes; it's very nice to read about her, but if there's anyone on earth you detest, it's the man or woman who's perfect.

I know a man who's married to a perfect woman. She's economical, she's a good manager, she's sensible, she's pretty in a cold, regular, statuesque sort of way; she's intelligent, she belongs to a study club and "improves her mind," she plays the piano—well enough; she speaks French—pretty well; she gives neat little parties and proper little dinners, and she never knows anybody who isn't worth knowing, and never does a thing she ought not to do, and I'd rather spend the day in the icebox with the cold chicken and the mayonnaise than to spend one long, dreary, bore-some hour with the "perfect" lady.

And, I'm afraid that's the way her husband feels about it, too. I saw him taking a little cousin of his to the train the other day—a little cousin whose hair is never quite combed exactly right, whose shoes have a terrible habit of coming untied, a little warm hearted, loving foolish cousin with a turned up nose and a mouth that would never get her into the moving pictures, and the way that poor hungry-hearted, lonesome man looked at her! Well, I'm glad cousin is going away. I think it's better for her and better for the man with the "perfect" wife.

Of course, when she wears white stockings or any of the pastel shades and carries a bag in the same tones she will put on white gloves.

Wearing White Kid Gloves

Of course you are wearing white kid gloves, for that is the smart thing to do to the costume nowadays. But are you spoiling the effect by wearing white gloves with stockings in the popular nude or beige tones or when carrying a bag in the wood colors?

A good dresser will never do that, for she considers harmony in clothes as essential as harmony in music. So she wears white gloves only when she wears sheer black, sumptuous or any gray hose.

SECRETS OF HEALTH AND SUCCESS

BY CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D.

FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

THE man who fails to adapt himself to good and improving surroundings is always regressing from something.

If we are to help him we must know from what he is regressing. The aim of life is twofold. The first demand of the individual is internal harmony. This means the satisfaction of necessities, like security from pain and death, provision for hunger and thirst and the self-realization—achievement for the man and attainment for the woman.

The second demand of the individual is external harmony. This means the satisfaction of the requirements of sex. Internal harmony can be achieved only by the direct satisfaction of these desires or through sublimation. Sublimation, however, which is the indirect application of instinctive energy to the needs of society, can never be a complete substitute for direct satisfaction.

We cannot attain complete fulfillment, even by constantly serving an ideal or by continually following a program of sublimation.

Hardly has a man's neuroticism that they sublimize imperfectly; they cannot accept margin of dissatisfaction which represents their unexpressed desire.

The second demand of man is for social efficiency. This springs from his herd instinct and an adequate service to society is part of the scheme of life for him. In order to make this contribution the individual must maintain an attitude of good will.

Independent good-will is the middle way between chronic enmity to society and passive submission. The large number of neurotic lives either in a state of perpetual war with society or are abject slaves to custom. Each of these attitudes shows a failure to adapt.

Hardly has a man's neuroticism influence upon whether a man shall achieve or fall in his twofold aim.

Practically everyone has some kind of hereditary handicap.

The factor in a man's physical composition which chiefly determines his personality is his glands of internal secretion: his thyroid, pituitary and adrenals. This is the system that transmits personal pe-

Women Auto Mechanics

Turkish feminism has taken another leap forward with the decision of the automobile mechanics school at Constantinople to open a branch for women. This decision was the result of multitudinous requests of women to become chauffeurs and automobile mechanics. The Minister of Hygiene and Education approved.

Travelers to Turkey within the next year will receive a new shock to their preconception of the veiled moslem lady, when it dawns upon them that their knickered and very much unveiled taxi driver is none other than she.

Troubled Home.

THOUGH you with eagerness may seek the storied lands after to journey gladly down the days where faded castles are, and though you follow joyously where sparkling waters gleam about those lovely, lonely lands, the islands of romance, yet always wearily, at last, you turn from where you roam and set your steps with happiness in paths that lead back home. Oh, far and fair the ways you go and strange the lands you see, for Earth is wide, oh, very wide, and filled with mystery, with many rare and lovely things to gladden soul and mind, to greet you all along the ways that, long and luring, wind. It's none to rove through distant lands.

The blouse back and the side drapes is conspicuous.

A box-pleated skirt and tunic of brown makes one of the smartest sports costumes.

Many garden dresses of crisp organdy, usually in the bouffant style, are worn.

Flats of all sorts, from the box pleat to the inverted pleat, are prominent in the afternoon dress.

Civet cat is an important trimming.

One of the smartest sports of showing sports hats of new design.

Blonde or black chiffon is the material of the evening dress.

Two-piece dress is already being shown. Most interesting are the veterans in patterns that are tweed mixtures.

FOR SUMMER IRONING

By Hannah Wing

YOU may think that nothing new in ironing has happened since the electric iron made summer ironing or pressing a decidedly easier task than it had formerly been. But that is not true. Ironing has its needs which the manufacturer has been improving the electric iron to meet.

Home ironing is usually a particular matter of silks and frills and laces and particular irons have been developed for this purpose.

Perhaps the most outstanding development, because it meets the want longed for by the home ironer, is the temperature-controlled iron. Taking a lesson from the finely controlled oven of the electric range the electric iron now has its automatic switch which keeps the iron just right for effective ironing even on very damp silk and never permits it to get hot enough for scorching.

This control is a great convenience as well as a safeguard when one is called from the ironing board by some sudden call such as a kettle boiling over, the door bell or something which seems to be only a matter of a moment but takes longer than expected. If the iron has been left on the board or even perhaps on the piece being ironed no damage will have been done.

Another iron has developed a round heel which makes the backward stroke possible without creating wrinkles in gathers.

Something altogether new in irons is to be had in the steaming iron which has just made its initial bow to the public. This iron is described as having a tiny reservoir filled through an open pipe placed alongside the handle of the iron from which water feeds over the heated interior works of the iron to emerge as steam through perforations in the center of the iron's surface. "Dampen as you go" is the slogan of this iron, which should be an effective aid to pressing as well as ironing the too dry garment and removing the ironed-in wrinkles.

Pump Mannequins in Demand.

Sophie Tucker, Marie Dressler and others who sing "Nobody Loves a Fat Girl" will hereafter find dress parades in London organized especially for women whom nature has not given the figures fashion-plate artists are so fond of painting.

"Pump" mannequins are now greatly in demand in London to display "outside" gowns, and there is a general scramble for the trade of women who have not banded themselves down to feather weight. Muriel Barnby, the actress, is among lecturers engaged to discuss the fashion problems of women who wear "outdoors."

Orange Float.

Beat the whites of two fresh eggs stiff and beat into it three heaping tablespoons of orange pulp. Sweeten to taste. Have ready a pint of whipped and drained cream in a glass dish and drop in the orange and egg mixture in tablespoonfuls. Chill and serve.

"Last year's—but Tintex will color it new again!"

TINTEX means more economy! It gives twice as much finish as one half cost! For faded things are quickly made new and colorful again with Tintex. No need, then, to be continually buying new things. And how simple! With light and sodium shades you just "rinse as you rinse" in hot or cold water. Use Tintex for silk stockings, "undies," dresses, sportswear—even curtains. A Secret of the Smiling Pool

Secrets there are everywhere,
In earth and water and the air.
—Old Mother Nature.

It is well that it is so. If there were no secrets, think how uninteresting life would be. Peter Rabbit says that half the fun of living is trying to find out things you don't know. Peter ought to know, for he's forever poking that wabbling little nose of his into all sorts of places trying to find out things.

One June evening, as the Black Shadows were creeping across the Green Meadows toward the Green Forest, Peter ran, lip-pertip, over to the Smiling Pool. It was some time since he had visited the Smiling Pool and it had occurred to him that evening that he didn't know what was going on over there. When he reached the bank of the Smiling Pool the black Shadows were just creeping over one bank. The water was very still. There wasn't a ripple. It was just like a looking glass, and Peter could see himself reflected in the water, together with the bank and all the things on the bank.

He didn't see anybody else. But he could hear if he couldn't see. Down on a big green lily pad where it was darkest Grandfather Frog was doing a bass solo and apparently enjoying it. Peter couldn't quite make him out and he wasn't near enough to talk to anyway. It was very lovely there. Presently over near the Laughing Brook Veery the Thrush began his evening song. It seemed to Peter that he could listen forever. It was like the ringing of a fairy bell. Farther back in the Green Forest, just far enough away to soften the call, Whip-poor-will was repeating his name over and over. Peter wondered sometimes how he ever got his breath, so fast and so many times did he repeat "Whip-poor-will, whip-poor-will, whip-poor-will."

It was all so peaceful and lovely that for a while Peter forgot that he had any curiosity. But by and by a tiny splash caught his attention. He looked down on the water, but for a few moments saw nothing. Then he made out a little silver line moving where the shadows were blackest. He knew what made that silver line. He knew that some one was swimming under there. Naturally, he first thought of Jerry Muskrat. But in a moment he realized that Jerry would make a much larger silver line as he swam. It wasn't moving fast enough to be made by Billy Mink and it certainly wasn't made by Little Joe Otter. "Now, who can be swimming over there in the Black Shadows?"

"Fed up" on ordinary Cereals?

THE finest thing you can do for yourself and yours at breakfast is to provide a change in menu. Appetites grow stale and people weary of eating the same old "seven and six" breakfasts.

Try Quaker Puffed Wheat. It's different in every way from any other cereal known—whole wheat steam exploded to 8 times natural size, then oven crisped to rare deliciousness. Tastes like toasted nuts.

The little swimmer was headed straight toward Peter. If Peter had sat perfectly still perhaps it would have come across to where Peter was. But Peter didn't sit perfectly still. In his excitement he moved. Instantly the little swimmer turned back and was lost in the shadows. Peter fairly hugged himself. He had discovered a secret of the Smiling Pool.

Peter didn't take his eyes off that moving line. Presently it turned, and a few moments later he saw a little brown head coming out from the shadows. Peter suddenly sat up very straight and stared with all his might. There was just the nose and top of the head out of water and behind Peter could see that a tiny tail was moving back and forth. "Whyee! That looks just like Jerry Muskrat, only very small," cried Peter. "Can it be? Can it possibly be that Jerry has had a secret over

The little swimmer was headed straight toward Peter. If Peter had sat perfectly still perhaps it would have come across to where Peter was. But Peter didn't sit perfectly still. In his excitement he moved. Instantly the little swimmer turned back and was lost in the shadows. Peter fairly hugged himself. He had discovered a secret of the Smiling Pool.

Peter didn't take his eyes off that moving line. Presently it turned, and a few moments later he saw a little brown head coming out from the shadows. Peter suddenly sat up very straight and stared with all his might. There was just the nose and top of the head out of water and behind Peter could see that a tiny tail was moving back and forth.
